TRUMP'S FOREIGN POLICY: GOOD AND BAD

Nations are nothing more than groups of individuals and possess no rights in and of themselves. The socalled rights of a nation are nothing more than the rights of its individual citizens, and a nation which recognizes the rights of its citizens, a nation whose government is the servant and not the ruler of its citizens, is a free nation, and alone possesses the right of self determination and territorial integrity. The right of national self determination is not absolute but conditional upon the moral character of the nation. It does not confer a blank check on a government to violate the rights of its citizens; it is not a shield for repressive government actions; and has to be earned by a government's good conduct. A nation whose government violates the rights of its citizens may be invaded by any free nation if and when the latter chooses to stop an evil from continuing. International law which is not based on international morality is an illegitimate defender of evil governments. International law is international morality or else it is the law of the jungle and the right of the strong. Any free nation had a moral right to invade the Soviet Union in order to stop its campaign of class extermination, and any free nation had a moral right to invade Hitler's Germany in order to stop its campaign of race extermination, and neither nation had any moral claim against such invasion, and had no proper legal claim. When properly grounded in morality, international law protects free nations, and free nations alone, from acts of aggression, and says that free nations may not be invaded unless they commit acts of aggression against other free nations. When properly grounded in morality, international law protects acts of imperialism practiced by free nations against unfree nations, affirming that imperialism is not per se wrong and that its morality is contingent on the actors involved. International law, properly understood, has both upheld and condemned the actions and policies of Donald Trump in 2026. Seeking to roll back the excrescences of the far left in America, from racist and sexist DEI policies to the insanity of transgenderism to government mandates to purchase electric vehicles to Marxist indoctrination of students from kindergarten to college to national borders open to human bacteria, Trump has exhibited moral clarity and perfection, and saved the nation for a time from a spreading cancer. In the field of foreign policy, Trump's actions and policies have, by contrast, presented a morally clouded picture. Trump has at times peddled immorality and thereby dishonored his positive achievements. He has peddled forms of immorality appealing to nationalism in violation of liberal principles. In the matter of Venezuela, the moral picture is mixed, while in the matter of Greenland, it is uniformaly negative. Venezuela: Moral Positive. On January 3, 2026, America launched military strikes on Venezuela in order to capture President Nicolas Maduro. Ordered by Trump and codenamed Operation Absolute Resolve, the operation was successful. Commencing at 2 AM local time, explosions, bombings of infrastructure and the suppression of air defenses brought Maduro out of Caracas and into New York City to stand trial on criminal charges. Maduro was the leader of the Cartel of the Sun, an international cocaine smuggling operation. He led violent drug gangs operating across the Western Hemisphere including America. He ran a government using its military to protect and promote drug trafficking. He partnered with drug traffickers and narcoterrorists throughout the world to peddle massive quantities of cocaine to America: "US courts accused Maduro in 2020 of basically being the leader of the Cartel of the Suns, which is an international cocaine trafficking operation. Marco Rubio sought a Red Notice in 2022. From Fox News concerning the indictment against Maduro: 'The unsealed indictment focuses on how Maduro allegedly enriched himself and political elites by reportedly partnering with vicious gangs and drug cartels that have established syndicates across the Western Hemisphere, including in the US, such as New York. The indictment lists six individuals as defendants, including Maduro, his wife, his son, and Hector Rusthenford Guerrero Flores, the leader of a vicious Venezuelan gang, Tren de Aragua. The indictment alleges that Maduro sits atop a corrupt, illegitimate government that, for decades, has leveraged government power to protect and promote illegal activity, including drug trafficking.' The indictment accuses Maduro and his coconspirators, which include Venezuelan Interior Minister Diosdado Cabello and former Interior

Minister Ramon Rodriguez Chacín, of partnering with narcoterrorists, including the Tren de Aragua gang and its leader, to distribute cocaine since at least 1999. 'In sum, MADURO MOROS and his coconspirators have, for decades, partnered with some of the most violent and prolific drug traffickers and narcoterrorists in the world, and relied on corrupt officials throughout the region, to distribute tons of cocaine to the United States,' the indictment reads." (End Of A Venezuelan Dictatorship: Maduro And Wife Captured In US Military Operation, Will Face Narco Terrorism Charges by Terresa Monroe-Hamilton). Venezuela: Moral Positive. In addition to putting Maduro on trial on drug charges, America captured Maduro in order to recover American oil stolen by the Venezuelan government. It captured Maduro in order to eliminate the regime of contractual violations and expropriation without compensation established by Hugo Chavez, a regime targeting American oil companies such as ExxonMobil and ConocoPhillips, and condemned by international courts: "Trump Isn't Pirating Ships—He must seize and sell 300 Venezuelan oil tankers to satisfy an international court judgment owed to US companies. A lot of people are reacting emotionally to the idea of oil tankers being seized, but most of the outrage comes from not understanding what is actually being discussed. So let's slow this down and explain it clearly, legally, and step by step. This is not war. This is not piracy. This is judgment enforcement—the same principle used every day when courts seize bank accounts, property, aircraft or cargo from someone who lost in court and refuses to pay. In the 2000s, under Hugo Chavez, Venezuela seized oil projects owned by foreign companies, including major US firms such as ExxonMobil and ConocoPhillips. This wasn't a policy disagreement. It was expropriation: Contracts were broken. Assets were taken. Compensation that had been agreed to was not paid. That is not controversial. It is historical fact. Those US companies didn't complain on social media. They went to international arbitration and US courts—the proper legal venues. They won. The rulings were: Final. Binding. Enforceable. Venezuela lost and was ordered to pay tens of billions of dollars in damages."(Elaine Law Testani's Post, Facebook). Venezuela: Moral Negative. Following the capture of Maduro, Trump invoked the Monroe Doctrine, proclaiming that "American dominance in the Western Hemisphere will never be questioned again". On December 2, 1823, President James Monroe proclaimed that America has the right to resist by force of arms any foreign interference in the Western Hemisphere. The Monroe Doctrine proclaimed that America has the right to invade any nation in the Western Hemisphere, without regard to whether that nation is free or unfree, merely if it has fallen under the control of a foreign power. It proclaims that America has the right to be an imperialist in the Western Hemisphere without regard to the character of the nations involved, whether they are free or unfree. Invoked by American presidents from Ulysses Grant to Theodore Roosevelt to John Kennedy to Ronald Reagan to Donald Trump in the present day, the Monroe Doctrine is a big stick of amoral imperialism, digracing a nation conceived in the Enlightenment. The Monroe Doctrine sanctions the assertion of brute American power and dominance, and the imprisonment of Western Hemisphere nations, both free or unfree, within an empire home region: "He dusted off the Monroe Doctrine–an early 19th century American foreign policy that asserted the Western Hemisphere should be free from influence by European powers–and rebranded it the 'Donroe Doctrine'. The action in Venezuela, Trump said, shows that 'American dominance in the Western Hemisphere will never be questioned again.' The goal of the new US national security strategy, he said, was to 'protect commerce, territory and resources that are core to our national security'. He branded the Western Hemisphere as America's 'home region'." (Venezuela Could Now Define Trump's Legacy--And America's Place In The World by Anthony Zurcher). Greenland: Moral Negative. On March 4, 2025, Donald Trump addressed a joint session of Congress and broadcast a fearsome message to the world. He proclaimed that America has the right to violate the territorial integrity of a free society called Greenland and annex it. He proclaimed that the Danish territory has no rights against an American engine of imperialism, and that American security overrides the right of self determination of a territory whose government, like the government of Denmark, respects human rights: "President Donald Trump said Tuesday that the United States would take control of Greenland 'one way or the other,' escalating months of increasingly aggressive rhetoric toward the self governing Danish territory. 'We need Greenland for national security and even international security, and we're working with everybody involved to try and get it,' Trump said 'But we need it really for international, for world security, and I think we're going to get it. One way or the other, we're going to get it,' he said. 'It's a very small population, but a very, very large piece of land. And very, very important for military security', the president concluded, before moving on to a separate topic." (Trump Says The US Will Take Control Of Greenland 'One Way Or The OIther' by Annie Nova). Positive-Negative. Donald Trump invaded and liberated Venezuela. He did so for a proper reason and an improper reason. The proper reason was to bring Nicolas Maduro to justice and stop his repression of the Venezuelan people. The improper reason was to enforce the Monroe Doctrine, which gives America the right to invade free nations in the Western Hemisphere. Trump is threatening to annex Greenland, which, by contrast to Venezuela, is a free society, possesses the right of self determination, and should be protected by international law. Trump is threatening to act like Vladimir Putin and annex a free land which, like Ukraine, possesses the right to determine its own future. Trump's foreign policy achievements are being tarnished by an amoral and unAmerican imperialism.

MARXIST HATE GROUP TERRORIZES GERMANY

They are as numerous as the maladjustments and psychoses which fuel them. Their flags and symbols form an underground forest of thoughts and emotions out of contact with reality. Black Lives Matter, the Celtic Cross, the Ku Klux Klan, the Hammer and Sickle, the Swastika, the Star and Crescent, the Nation of Islam. Born of the fear and envy diagnosed in psychiatrists' offices, these are hate groups, and they have been terrorizing free peoples for time immemorial. Their mission to target and destroy of all those they hate, members of gender, race, class, ethnic, cultural, religious or political groups, has brought down the darkest moments of history and disgraced nations officially devoted to truth and enlightenment. Their propensity for violence and real world harm is described by the multinational technology company, Meta: "In an effort to prevent and disrupt real world harm, we do not allow organizations or individuals that proclaim a violent mission or are engaged in violence to have a presence on our platforms. We assess these entities based on their behaviour both online and offline–most significantly, their ties to violence. Under this policy, we designate individuals, organizations and networks of people. These designations are divided into two tiers that indicate the level of content enforcement, with Tier 1 resulting in the most extensive enforcement because we believe that these entities have the most direct ties to offline harm." (Dangerous Organizations And Individuals, Meta, website). In Germany in the twenty first century, a Marxist hate group has arisen and taken its place in the nation's everexpanding gallery of hate groups. Following in the footsteps of the Red Army Faction, the June 2 Movement and the Revolutionary Cells, this group seeks to spread panic in the streets and overthrow free institutions. A nonprofit limited liability company based in Berlin, founded in 2018 by Anna-Lena von Hodenberg and Josephine Ballon, HateAid is a hate group policing online antiMarxist speech and seeking to eliminate its voices. Seeking to purge cyberspace of politically incorrect viewpoints and opinions, it employs the methods of consulting, advocacy, legal cost financing, law enforcement, legislative proposals, media work, public relations work and physical violence, and will stop at nothing in its campaign to ensure that the global informational field called the internet remains a monocultural hothouse raising a single crop called Marxism. HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that antiMarxist speech is hate speech, violent speech and disinformation. Digital space must be purged of this in the name of freedom and democracy: "HateAid was founded in the conviction that everyone has the right to freely express themselves on the internet. Hate, violence and systematic disinformation are putting pressure on our freedom of speech in digital space. We are convinced that respect and tolerance are vital for a democracy that today needs support in this area more than ever." (HateAid, website, Our Vision). HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that antiMarxist online speech is digital violence. Marxists traumatized by online criticisms need to have emotionally stabilizing counselling and consultation sessions. Marxists victimized by online criticisms have legally valid claims to enforce AntiMarxist online speech, and must be eliminated by political, judicial and commercial means in the name of protecting democratic values in digital space. AntiMarxist online speech is earsplitting, insulting and damaging to society. AntiMarxist online speech must be eliminated by campaigns, petitions and violent actions in the name of ensuring that democracy remains a living reality. AntiMarxist online speech is illegal content and has no place in a world free of hate and discrimination: "Society can only be as free as its smallest constituents. And if individuals no longer dare to express their opinions without restraint, our society is damaged. Many remain silent these days for fear of hate. Particularly those who also experience discrimination in other areas of everyday life, and who are even more affected if they take a stand on the internet, while those who scream the loudest and are the most insulting get all the attention. This is where HateAid steps in. All those affected who don't spread digital violence themselves can turn to HateAid. If they wish, they can first receive an emotionally stabilizing initial counselling session. If necessary, there can be further consultations with trained counsellors. All this is free of charge and without obligation. In selected cases we support victims in enforcing their legal claims. But this is not enough: We want to sustainably improve the conditions for people affected by digital violence. To this end, we inform politics, the judiciary and business about online hate, and develop specific solutions to strengthen basic democratic values in digital space. At the societal level, we actively oppose online violence. With campaigns, petitions and specific actions, we encourage people to speak up for a society that lives democracy in all its aspects. We work together with the media and the internet public to make visible what drives us. And we encourage everyone to stand up against online hate and to report illegal content." (HateAid, website, Our Path). HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that antiMarxist online speech is online hate and right wing violence. Victims of antiMarxist online criticism must be given consultations, while the perpetrators must be targeted by law enforcement, political work and campaigns of violence in order to protect freedom of speech in the public sphere: 'HateAid was the idea of several key players who had for a long time individually campaigned against online hate. In 2018, this developed into HateAid GmbH, an organization that has substantially changed the attitude to digital violence in Germany. Our cofounders from Fearless Democracy e.V. had been exposed to extensive hate themselves, simply because they had taken a stance on political and social positions online. That there is far too little support, and that digital violence can severely disrupt freedom of speech in the public sphere, were key insights for them. In order to create something with a lasting effect against digital violence, they found like minded people in the citizens' movement Campact eV, a lawyer committed to combating right wing violence and Anna-Lena von Hodenberg as founding CEO. Initially, HateAid was focusing on consultation and law enforcement, but its activities quickly expanded to include political work and campaigning against digital violence." (HateAid, website, Our Story). HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that antiMarxist online speech must be eliminated in the name of protecting diversity of opinion on the internet. AntiMarxist online speech must be eliminated by all manner of legal means, including legalized violence and intimidation: "Anna-Lena von Hodenberg became the driving force within the organization. A professional television journalist, she had passionately dedicated herself to the fight against hate speech as a campaigner at Campact. With HateAid she can now even more intensely pursue the protection of diversity of opinion on the internet–a project close to her heart. Anna-Lena von Hodenberg is joined by CEO Josephine Ballon who has been the legal voice of HateAid since 2019 and, in her position as Head of Legal, has sharpened HateAid's idea of legal innovation and initiated important landmark cases." (HateAid, website, Our Story). HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that online criticisms of Marxist politicians and climate activists must be eliminated in the name of securing democratic voices online. Politically active Marxists must be protected from all online criticisms, insults and death threats in order that they may continue to stand up for a just and progressive society:

"Whether members of the Bundestag, climate activists or local politicians–those who are committed to our society are often affected by digital violence. These attacks leave their marks: many adapt their style or think carefully about what they say and share in public. Others wonder whether they should still take on visible, responsible roles such as mayor or spokesperson for an initiative–or whether they should withdraw from political work altogether. In this way, digital violence is changing how people stand up for our society. HateAid counters the increasing hostilities and threats and secures democratic voices online. The goal: to protect politically active people from insults, death threats and other forms of digital violence. In this way, we want to improve the framework conditions for all those who are committed to our society." (HateAid, website, Digital Violence And Political Engagement). HateAid. Listen to HateAid proclaim that all corners of cyberspace must be placed under government surveillance, and private communications must be policed for antiMarxist content. AntiMarxist online speech is hate violence and must be prosecuted by the state to the fullest extent of the law, and should not be left to private individuals with limited resources to prosecute. A progressive society has established a new criminal offense called antiMarxist online thought and speech, set up a merciless, all seeing eye, and jailed every transgressor in society bar none, from journalists to activists to teachers to children to the neighbors next door: "Violence against political figures is not a private problem, but a social one. This should already be countered by the introduction of a new criminal offense. The current norm does not cover hostility via private message or email, is not applicable to journalists and activists, and is also interpreted very restrictively. Therefore there is a need for consistent prosecution of hate crimes against politically active people beyond the norm. In these cases, the proceedings must not be discontinued and a reference to private prosecution is out of the question." (HateAid, website, More Protection Against Hatred). HateAid. Halle, Germany 1924. Ernst Thalmann and Willy Loew found a paramilitary organization called the League of Red Front Combatants. Greeting their comrades with the cry Red Front! and a clenched fist salute, members of the league wore the uniforms and brandished the flags of violence as they clashed with their ideological brothers, the national socialist Storm Troopers, on the streets and set fire to the Weimar Republic. Thalmann and Loew would reappear in many guises over the decades in Germany. Their latest appearances were described by United States Secretary of State Marco Rubio: "For too long, ideologues in Europe have led organized efforts to force American platforms to punish American viewpoints they don't like. The Donald Trump administration will no longer tolerate these egregious acts of extraterritorial censorship. The State Department is therefore imposing travel bans against leading figures in the global censorship industrial complex, with the possibility of expanding the list if others do not change course." (X). Marxist ideologues wielding the truncheons of online censorship, Anna-Lena von Hodenberg and Josephine Ballon were banned from traveling to America. Their HateAid group is setting fire to Germany.

JUNKIE NATION

Ramshackle RVs, nondescript sedans, shopping carts, bicycles, tents and tarps line a street on the edge of the city, bordered by an open field and, beyond that, the Yamhill River. A lonely dumpster, lid thrown open, sits amid piles of trash. Deputies recently responded to three overdoses at the camp in one day. Another overdose call sent them racing to a logging road in the Coast Range, a 35 minute drive from the sheriff's office. Much too long for them to reach the person in time. 'There's nothing out there,' Yamhill County Sheriff Sam Elliott said. 'They weren't camping. They weren't living up there. They just were up there specifically to smoke pills.' (Crisis In The Northwest: Drugs Leave Rural Areas To Rot In The Shadows, 'Like Playing Whac-A-Mole' by Hannah Ray Lambert). Lives shattered. Dreams cut short. The present and future blackened beyond recognition. Every corner of America, from Hawaii to New York to Alaska to Florida, is being swept over by an epidemic of drug addiction which is killing people in body and soul by the hundreds of thousands every year. But there is another addiction which has submerged the nation and forever destroyed its moral character, an addiction deeper and more profound than drug addiction because it has destroyed the nation's free institutions. Commenced under the administration of Franklin Roosevelt, this is an addiction to welfare, and it has rendered the nation conceived in the Enlightenment, a nation dedicated in its founding documents to the principle of human liberty and self responsibility, unrecognizable. Throughout history, civilizations in a state of decline have been marked by welfare addiction and have shamelessly abandoned their founding free ideals. Late Rome had its grain doles, pork doles, olive oil doles, public games and child support, and Europe today is submerged in cradle to grave welfare entitlements. But the fall of America, the leader of the free world, into the opium dens of public welfare is a terrifying illustration of the eternal law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently rotted and decayed from within. Welfare: a system in which the government robs Peter to support Paul based on the mystical doctrine of social responsibility. Groups are nothing more than collections of individuals and do not exist as such or apart from the individuals which comprise them. There is thus no such thing as social responsibility, the responsibility to serve and sacrifice to a god called the Collective, but only natural, individual, self responsibility. Welfare: a system of injustice in which Peter's neighbor Paul claims Peter's earned wealth as his right, making Peter the slave of Paul. Welfare: a system of legalized theft in which the producers of wealth are forced to support human bacteria. America Today. Look at America today and see the consensus that socialism is a noble ideal, and that such things as government wealth redistribution and government provided housing are in theory exemplary, and that the problem with socialism resides only in practice. See the consensus that the problem with socialism resides not its immorality but merely in its implementation: "Socialism cannot survive without coercion. It demands compliance because people do not voluntarily surrender their labor, savings, property, or speech indefinitely. When resistance emerges—as it always does—the state responds with force. That is not a bug. It is the feature. Mamdani [New York Mayor elect Zohran Mamdani] and his ideological allies are still at the 'warm' stage. They speak of 'housing as a human right', 'wealth redistribution', and 'ending exploitation.' It all sounds merciful. It all sounds moral. But the real question is never asked: Who decides?" (Maduro: The End Of A Warm Collectivist by Kevin McCullough). America Today. Look at America today and see the consensus that healthcare is a human right subsidized by government confiscation of wealth. See socialism promoted in the name of centrism, compromise, moderation, bipartisanship, affordability and the Affordable Care Act: "A handful of renegade Republicans in the US House of Representatives have joined all Democrats to pass a bill that would extend healthcare subsidies for millions of Americans. Seventeen moderate Republicans defied party leadership to help approve the measure by 230-196. But the legislation could face an uphill battle in the Senate. House Speaker Mike Johnson had opposed a renewal of the pandemic era tax credits, arguing they are rife with fraud, but some of his rank and file crossed the aisle to force a vote. Insurance premiums through the Affordable Care Act (ACA), also known as Obamacare, have more than doubled for some 20 million Americans since the subsidies expired at the end of last year. The measure passed on Thursday would extend the Covid era subsidies for another three years. Centrist Republicans have said they would rather support some kind of extension than do nothing at all. About 24 million Americans buy health insurance through the ACA marketplace, and the majority were used to receiving tax credits to lower the monthly price. Those tax credits, also referred to as subsidies, were first introduced through former President Barack Obama's ACA in 2014. They were then expanded during Covid. The bill's passage is a setback for House Republican leadership, which controls the lower chamber of Congress by a narrow majority. The vote was forced when four members of the Republican rank and file defected last month to support a procedural tactic known as a discharge petition. The House measure does not have to be brought up in the Senate, which has already rejected it. Even if the legislation was brought back to the upper chamber of Congress, it does not currently have the 60 votes it needs to pass. Senators have said they are working on their own bipartisan compromise, the text of which should be available next week. Though the House vote was largely symbolic, it places lawmakers on the record ahead of this November's midterm elections, when healthcare and affordability are likely to be hot campaign issues." (US House Expands Healthcare Subsidies But Bill Faces Battle In Senate by Ana Faguy). America Today. Look at America today and see a system of guaranteed incomes provided by the government to the neighbors next door. See cash handouts provided by the government to the poor. See human bacteria provided with massive lump sum payments by the government. See human bacteria provided with luxurious vacations by the government. See bacterial families, comprised of bacterial mothers, fathers and ever multiplying children, provided with clothing, haircuts, housing and a royal lifestyle by the government. See socialism promoted in the name of Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children and Temporary Assistance to Needy Families. See the government become a bountiful provider of the people, destroying the desire, the incentive and the responsibility to work. See financial irresponsibility, living for the range of the moment, and the squandering of personal resources rewarded by a system of lifetime government welfare support. See socialism promoted as the highest form of moral, social and political progressivism: "More than $125 million of taxpayer money is earmarked to be used as no strings attached 'guaranteed income' for low income families across the US, a Daily Mail analysis revealed Sunday. Such programs have 'surged' in popularity in several Democrat controlled cities, handing families 'up to $36,000' in cash handouts, the UK publication reported. As progressives cheer on these welfare schemes as victories for those with financial struggles, some recipients have proven that they can't be trusted to make economically savvy decisions when given large amounts of money. A Washington, DC, mom of three spent thousands on a lavish vacation after receiving money from the city's program that gave more than 100 low income mothers a lump sum of $10,800, Breitbart News reported in February. Canethia Miller, 27, spent a whopping $6,000 on a luxury Miami trip, including money for new outfits, haircuts, and more for herself, children, and partner. A Washington Post article detailed how Miller's lifestyle choices led her to be reliant on multiple forms of welfare: 'She was a stay at home mom when her third child, Nazir, was born in summer 2022, making things work financially through a host of public benefits. Her two bedroom apartment in Anacostia is subsidized, and with Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) as her only income, her rent payments are about $120 a month. Food stamps and WIC, a program that offers nutritional support for low income mothers, offered another lifeline for Miller to provide for her infant and two older children, ages 5 and 8. 'I wanted to blow it. I wanted to have fun,' told the Post. She also amazingly acknowledged that many people in the community 'don't know the financial gain of credit, saving for your kids; that's why we're broke, that's why we don't have nothing to pass down or no house to give down.' Similar programs in other progressive run cities such as Los Angeles and New York offer payments of up to $1,000 per month for three years that people can spend on whatever they like, the Daily Mail found. 'Ongoing projects will deliver more than $125 million to nearly 10,000 Americans nationwide across more than 30 programs that last up to three years', the outlet stated, citing data from the Guaranteed Income Pilots Dashboard." (Analysis: $125 Million In Taxpayer Funds Handed Out As 'Guaranteed Income' by Olivia Rondeau). America Today. Germany 1933 to 1945. The National Socialist People's Welfare organization doles out welfare support to over seventeen million Germans deemed to be members of the Aryan racial community. Advocating socialism in the name of economic security, government action, unemployment insurance, old age insurance, and support for mothers and dependents, Franklin Roosevelt inaugurated America's descent into socialism: "In his State of the Union Address before Congress on January 4, 1935, President Roosevelt declared, 'the time has come for action by the national government' to provide 'security against the major hazards and vicissitudes of life.' He went on to propose the creation of federal unemployment and old age insurance programs. He also called for guaranteed benefits for poor single mothers and their children along with other dependent persons.' " (The Great Depression: An Eyewitness History by David Burg). In the twenty first century, Hitler's and Roosevelt's welfare state has suffocated America in clouds of moral degeneracy.

NEW MILLENNIUM BLACKOUTS ACROSS GERMANY

Germany, 1977. A special kind of autumn descends on the nation outside the normal seasonal change. This special German Autumn is a shadow of fear under which the nation bleeds with violence. The nation has fallen under attack by the Red Army Faction and is hit by a campaign of attacks by the guns and bombs of Marxist terror. The kidnapping of Federal Prosecutor General Siegfried Buback. The killing of Jurgen Ponto of the Dresdner Bank. The killing of German industrialist Hans Martin Schleyer. The hijacking of Lufthansa Flight 181 en route from Palma de Mallorca Spain to Frankfurt am Main, and the killing of the pilot, Jurgen Schumann. Condemning liberal democracy as a fascist regime, the Red Army Faction launched a wave of death and destruction which saw bombings, assassinations, kidnappings, bank robberies and shootouts with police over the course of three decades, from 1970 to 1998, and brought back the violence which shattered the Weimar Republic, when Marxists fought with their ideological brothers, the national socialists, for control of the streets. In the twenty first century, the Weimar-RAF armies of Marxist terror have struck again and are pushing Germany into a permanent wintertime which has banished freedom to the Arctic wastelands of cultural nonexistence. The Marxist terror sweeping Germany today is the terror sweeping the West, and is the terror helping to write the final lines of the story of civilization. The final lines are being written by Marxists, Islamists, fascists and the Christian Right, the four horsemen of the Apocalypse, and this mass rejection of reason and the Enlightenment is the definition of cultural degeneration. In Germany in the twenty first century, Marxists are leading the charge of the Grim Reapers. Germany Today. Look at Germany today and see Marxists attack Berlin's power network and threaten the lives of hundreds of thousands of people. See them deprive Berliners of electricity and plunge them into frozen death. See the German cultural and political establishment downplay and ignore Marxist violence in the face of the terrifying reality that such violence has increased by forty five percent over a twelve month period. See Marxist volcanoes spew out lava streams of hate against private property. See the establishment manufacture the conspiracy that Marxist terror is planned and aided by the Alternative for Germany, and is in reality rigth wing, fascist terror: "Attacks by leftist activists are rising in Germany, with the latest targeting Berlin’s power network and leaving tens of thousands without electricity in freezing winter conditions. The muted response from establishment officials has raised concerns that such violence is being systematically downplayed. In the year up to November 30th, 2025, the federal government recorded 931 left wing motivated violent crimes—an increase of approximately 45%. This finding, published in Junge Freiheit on Tuesday, was brought about by a parliamentary question submitted by the right-wing Alternative für Deutschland. The Berlin power outage, which reports say will end after just over four days on January 7th, is already understood to have resulted in several vulnerable citizens dying. One CDU official even accepted on Saturday that the targeted attack could result in 'hundreds to thousands of deaths.' Yet the extremist Volcano Group behind the attack said in a new statement yesterday that 'we will not be swayed by moral outrage that only surfaces when property is at stake.' It therefore falls to the authorities to intervene against groups that are clearly unwilling to back down. Instead, just as officials ignored leftist threats leading up to this event, critics say they are downplaying the left wing connection and will continue to look elsewhere. AfD politician Martin Hess criticized establishment figures for 'keeping silent, downplaying it or deliberately looking away', pointing in particular at people who say without evidence that the attack was aided by a foreign power with the help of the AfD itself. 'This security policy blindness must end, because Berlin shows: Left wing extremism has long since been the dominant form of terrorism. Anyone who does not recognize this has no place in politics. The rule of law must now act consistently and resolutely stop left terrorist structures as well as their supporters and minimizers in our society.' Perhaps most notably, Chancellor Friedrich Merz has now been publicly silent about the outage for more than 100 hours. The authorities said that power was being restored to tens of thousands of households from just before midday on Wednesday." (Berlin Outage Latest In Surge of Left Wing Attacks In Germany by Michael Curzon). Germany Today. Look at Germany today and see Marxists destroy power lines in Berlin and plunge tens of thousands of homes and businesses into cold and darkness. See Marxists inflict the worst electric power damage to the city since World War II, damage which will require months to repair. See Marxist message boards justify the destruction of power lines in the name of destroying the free political system. See Marxists destroy communication lines to police, ambulances and fire brigades, prevent emergency relief operations, and consign those in distress to death. See the Red Cross, civil defense agencies and mobile diesel generators deployed to rescue the city. See trams halt in their tracks and block roads and junctions. See traffic lights go out and streets plunge into chaos. See Marxists work within the city government to aid and abet the attacks. See Marxists attack Berlin's WISTA, Europe's largest science and technology park, and plunge Germany's Silicon Valley, hosting hundreds of research, development and manufacturing business, into darkness. See Marxists inflict maximum power disruption in the name of achieving maximum social justice. See the lives of the sick and elderly sacrificed on the altar of communist anarchy and people's liberation. See Marxists condemn modern capitalist civilization as a regime of fascist technocracy and plunge the IT, robotics, biotech, nanotech, aerospace, AI, security and defense industries into darkness. See the machines and processes of modern scientific and industrial civilization grind to a halt. See Marxists bring down the destruction of the city as the cultural and political establishment looks the other way, and refuses to fight an advancing monster of sabotage and subversion: "A radical left group claimed responsibility for the destruction of power lines that left 50,000 homes and many businesses without electricity in Berlin for two and a half days, with repairs expected to take until 2026. A manifesto confession posted on a notorious hard left message board called electricity the primary means of support for the political system, and depriving thousands of people of power for days justifiable collateral damage. 50,000 homes in southeast Berlin and thousands of businesses woke up to a power cut on Tuesday this week so severe it took 60 hours for the energy company to get all residents back onto a stable temporary supply. This is now working well, the city says, but the work to make permanent repairs will be so great they will take months and may not be completed until 2026. The power cut is the longest experienced in Berlin since the Second World War. While many of the systems that help deliver the modern world have built in backups, the outage lasted so long they were exhausted, meaning even basics like the emergency telephone numbers to call the police, fire brigade, and ambulances ceased to function. German broadsheet newspaper Die Welt said the city felt like a scene from a 'apocalyptic Hollywood movie.' The Red Cross and Civil Defence agency was deployed to Berlin, with lighthouse pop up tents through the city with diesel generators to give citizens a place they could go to charge their cell phones, get a hot drink, or talk to government advisors. Across southeast Berlin trams had stopped dead in the street and in many cases were blocking roads and junctions. Conventional diesel powered vehicles were deployed to drag them away and police officers were on traffic duty at busy junctions where traffic lights had similarly failed. Berlin City said in a statement on Friday, after power had been restored: 'The fire destroyed several thick power lines at the foot of two electricity pylons in Berlin-Johannisthal in the district of Treptow-Kopenick. It took the fire brigade an hour just to extinguish the fire.' Broadcaster Radioeins states the attack was by 'left wing extremist attack with insider knowledge' on where exactly to set fires to cause maximum disruption. City Mayor Kai Wegner said of the sabotage: 'Those affected, including many elderly people and families with children, had to go without the bare necessities–simply because some left wing extremists believe their ideology is more important than human life. I also find it appalling that there is a political front that is shrugging off this attack and refusing to acknowledge how dangerous these perpetrators are. We must have this debate now.' The sabotage was claimed in a confession letter signed by Some Anarchists. The document is being treated as genuine by police investigators, it is stated. In the document, the alleged perpetrators revealed the intended target of the power outage is WISTA, Europe’s largest science and technology park, the home to hundreds of research and manufacturing businesses and known in the country as 'Germany’s Silicon Valley'. This, they said, was because of 'fascist technocracy'. They stated: 'No, today is not a normal day. Hundreds of CEOs of various companies and research institutes from the fields of IT, robotics, bio and nanotech, aerospace, AI, security, and defense industries have received the bitter news that their technology park in Adlershof has ceased to function. At least for a short period of time, but that was enough to massively disrupt their sensitive supermachines and processes.' " (60 Hours:Berlin Suffers Longest Power Cut Since WW2 After Ultra Leftist Sabotage by Oliver JJ Lane). Germany Today. It lasted five days, from October 13 to 18, 1977. En route from Palma de Mallorca to Frankfurt am Main, Lufthansa Flight 181 was hijacked by four members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, working in conjuction with the RAF, and landed at the Mogadishu International Airport in Somalia. The aim of the hijacking was to secure the release of RAF leaders held in German prisons. In the twenty first century, Germany has been hijacked by the leaders of a new German Autumn and civilization has been taken prisoner. Marxist commandos are seeking to bomb the nation into prehistoric times as they devour the West. The hijacked nation cannot be rescued because the fires raging and the power lines cut are symptoms of a final age of religiousness, bringing Marxism to commanding heights.

RAINBOW ORCHESTRAS PLAY WORLD REVOLUTION

In 1933 the Reichsmusikkammer (National Ministry of Music) introduced a succession of policies aimed at protecting Aryan culture. All Jewish music teachers, performers, composers, and musicologists were expelled from their posts. Music composed or performed by Jews was banned from concert programs and broadcasts; their recordings and sheet music were removed from stores; textbooks were revised to remove offending references to their accomplishments. (Music Of The Holocaust by Joshua Jacobson, encyclopedia.com). Eighty years after the Third Reich and its Aryan orchestras crashed into smoking ruins and Hitler's nightmare empire came to an end, political orchestras are back in business, this time around promoting gender, race and class discrimination, and doing so in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. Eighty years after Hitler's orchestras fell silent before the white flags of national surrender, a new variety of orchestra based on a new tribalism has arisen, substituting gender ideology, class war and black supremacy for Aryan white power, and carrying on Marxist identity politics under new names and new faces. The players have changed from the Third Reich but the theme remains the same: musical excellence, complexity, polyphony and long established principles placed in the service of tribal primitivism. The orchestras of the present day, like the orchestras of Hitler's Germany, play the exalted art music of the West, play supreme musical rationality, with strings, woodwinds, drums, keyboards and brass assembled by caveman identity politics, and make a mockery of the human universality expressed by classical music. Orchestras Today. Look at orchestras today and see the rejection of nondiscriminatory employment, and see musicians hired on the basis of race. See racist policies paraded as diversity initiatives. See unqualified musicians hired because they are black. See black musicians hired as racial tokens. See musicians succeed, not on the basis of their merit, but on the basis of their skin color. See meritocracy replaced by selection processes expressing political correctness. See blind auditions replaced by auditions in which the candidate is seen so that he or she can be chosen on the basis of tribal identity. See candidates hired, not by the book, not in accordance with rules demanding fairness, but in accordance with ideologically grounded standards. See the principle of artistic talent and ability sacrificed on the altar of social, political and ideological pressure, and see traditional orchestras replaced by ensembles of race and gender: "From New York to London to Vienna, orchestras around the world have faced calls to diversify their ensemble, sometimes through race conscious means. Anthony Tommasini, a New York Times music critic, has even called for ending blind auditions. The Nashville Symphony was not immune to these pressures, having embarked on several grant funded diversity initiatives in 2017. After the orchestra broke its own rules to hire an oboist many regarded as unqualified, James Zimmermann took an almost obsessive stand. The result was a hushed discontent that crescendoed into crisis, as the orchestra tried and failed to contain the tensions it had created. At the center of those tensions was Titus Underwood, who would become the first black principal oboist at a major US orchestra. His rise marked the start of Zimmermann's fall. It also marked the triumph of tokenism at the Nashville Symphony, which denied Underwood a chance to succeed on his own merits. In an ironic twist, it was Zimmermann's zeal for meritocracy that helped Underwood rise in the first place. Underwood joined the Nashville Symphony in 2017 as a temporary replacement for the outgoing principal oboist. To get the job permanently, he needed to win a blind audition held in March 2019. Underwood's playing had been inconsistent since his arrival at the symphony, members of the Nashville Symphony's woodwind section told the Washington Free Beacon, but he would now be given a chance to prove himself without any baggage—provided he remained anonymous. But Underwood was inadvertently outed in the final round of the audition. The audition committee, including Zimmermann, had narrowed it down to one candidate, but whoever was behind the curtain hadn't impressed. That meant they had two options: send the candidate home and hold another audition, or give the candidate a trial period and make a decision at the end of it. Before they could finish deliberating, a violinist—having misjudged the need for anonymity—burst out from behind the screen and announced that the candidate was Titus Underwood. Underwood's outing tipped the scales against him. The audition committee had been leaning toward a trial run, but backpedaled once they learned that the candidate had been struggling in the orchestra for over a year. Giancarlo Guerrero, the symphony maestro, was especially sour on Underwood, according to three members of the committee who stressed that principal oboe is one of the most important seats in any orchestra. At Guerrero's urging, the committee agreed to send Underwood on his way without telling him what had happened. Sickened by what he described as a 'disgusting' breach of fairness, Zimmermann urged his colleagues to stick with their initial inclination and offer Underwood the trial period. 'If Titus had remained anonymous, as he should have, he would have been given [a] rightly earned opportunity' to prove his mettle, Zimmermann wrote in an email to the committee the next day. The orchestra relented and gave Underwood a two week trial period, in keeping with terms of the orchestra's union contract. If the committee was satisfied with the oboist's performance during those two weeks, he'd be awarded the permanent position. However the committee ultimately voted, Underwood now had a chance to win the job based on merit, by the book. But a vote was never held. After the first trial week, Guerrero unilaterally appointed Underwood without the consent of the committee, a direct violation of the orchestra's own rules. This unprecedented step, several musicians said, seemed to have been motivated by Underwood's race. Earlier in the week, Guerrero had called the entire committee into his office and urged them to vote early for Underwood, before the trial period was up, according to three members of the committee. When the committee refused, Guerrero began calling committee members into his office individually. '[M]eetings that were supposed to be about artistic merit and feedback turned into something else', the president of the orchestra union, Dave Pomeroy, wrote in an email to colleagues. That something else was 'diversity', said Jeff Bailey, a trumpet player on the committee. He and Zimmermann both recall a frazzled looking Guerrero saying they 'needed to trust him' and implying that outside pressure was being applied." (How Racial Anxiety Conquered An Orchestra And Crushed A Career by Aaron Silberman). Orchestras Today. Look at orchestras today and see the proclamation that orchestras are too white. Orchestras must reject fair hiring practices and must discriminate against whites, and their members must be selected on the basis of proportional representation. Orchestras must serve as beacons of identity politics, and be colored black, brown, hispanic, filipino and all the colors of the Marxist rainbow: "Nathaniel Taylor was 5 years old when the deep, mellow sounds from a cello on Sesame Street commanded his attention. Elmo was the interviewer. World renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma was the musician. Years later, when he began learning the cello, classical music stole his heart. Now Taylor, 25, is trying to pursue a professional career playing the instrument he loves, but he'll need to break into the austere world of classical music for that to happen. That's a path filled with numerous challenges--arguably more so for Taylor, who's half African-American and half Filipino. Most classical music professionals in major symphony orchestras around the country are white, according to the League of American Orchestras. That includes well known conservatories like The Julliard

School, The Curtis Institute, and the New England Conservatory, to name a few. As a result, America's orchestras aren't as diverse as the cities they serve. African-Americans make up 1.8 percent of orchestras nationwide while hispanics make up 2.5 percent, according to an industry wide study." (Lack Of Diversity In Top Orchestras Remains A Major Challenge For Musicians Of Color by Matthew Vann). Orchestras Today. Look at orchestras today and see the proclamation that orchestras should undergo regular diversity and inclusion audits in order to ensure that they discriminate on the basis of race and class, and give preferential treatment to black, Asian and poor condidates. Orchestras should serve as gender, race and class prisms projecting a spectrum of tribes, envy, hate and discrimination: "Some of the UK's top orchestras have committed to a diversity audit in a bid to help more people from black, Asian and working class backgrounds into classical music. The BBC Concert Orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic, London Philharmonic and the National Youth Orchestra of Great Britain are among the 40 organisations who have signed up to I'M IN—the world's first diversity and inclusion audit tool for the music industry. The five step program will assess the diversity of each organization, giving it a score and then suggesting actions it can take to improve inclusion. London Philharmonic Orchestra chief executive David Burke said: 'We are absolutely committed to broadening access to classical music through all that we do and recognize the potential for our sector to truly include the many inspiring voices that our diverse community represents. We expect our organization to embrace and reflect our vibrant, multifaceted world, but appreciate the challenges in achieving this are deep and complex. We look forward to working with the tool kit as it will help us and others in our arts sector to make meaningful, sustainable strides towards our diversity and inclusion goals.' " (I'm In: Orchestras Sign Up To Diversity Audit To Include More Black And Asian Musicians by Rachel Burford). Orchestras Today. It was the Third Reich's flagship orchestra, touring the world, performing at the 1936 Olympics, at Nuremberg rallies, on Hitler's birthday, and expelling Jewish members and promoting Aryan culture. In the twenty first century, the Berlin Philharmonic has been reconstituted and tours the world again. No longer in the arms of Hitler's brownshirts and no longer performing concerts in front of swastikas, it performs under new flags and new colors. In the twenty first century, the Berlin Philharmonic is everywhere, is every orchestra in the West, and performs with the voices of a new identity politics.

THE LATE MODERN AGE

In the preceding volumes of this history, I have described the triumph of barbarism and religion. Thus speaks Edward Gibbon in his masterwork The Decline And Fall Of The Roman Empire. Barbarism and religion, two words standing for two terrifying realities, two unbalanced mental beings, two forms of insanity which have ever been at war with reason and civilization. Throughout history, the dominance of these forms has characterized ages of civilizational decline when the masses have abandoned reason. One form represents the worship of matter and the rejection of man's intellect, while the other form represents the worship of a supernatural dimension held to be unperceivable, and to be knowable by means of mystic feeling and intuition. One form views man as a headless body, while the other form views man as a bodiless head, and these two psychotic monsters, out of touch with truth, common sense and ordinary experience, acting alone or in concert, have achieved dominance whenever a civilization descends into its final struggles, and are the preeminent, foundational symptoms of moral, spiritual and intellectual death. Ancient Rome was stricken by its barbarians and religionists described by Gibbon, by its Germanic hordes and its Christian mystics, while in the postClassical civilization of the West, in the late modern age, the barbarians and the mystics are represented by adherents of Marxism, its variant fascism, together with the oldtime, resurgent Abrahamic faiths of Christianity and Islam. The Marxists, the reductive materialists, marching under signs of the Hammer and Sickle and under a host of fascist symbols, together with the otherwordly mystics marching under the signs of the Cross, and the Red Star and Crescent, are the gravediggers of the West in the twenty first century. Look at them and see monsters luxuriate in minds unable to deal with problems in living and unable to function as adults in reality, and see them battle for the control of the world. Marxists. See Marxists proclaim that mind has no existence and reality is constituted of matter, muscles, machines and the means of production. Human wealth is created, not by the processes of the mind, but by the processes of mindless muscular labor. Machines create ideas and truths, and truths and ideas are nothing more than phantoms of machines. The category of mental labor has no basis in reality and the only form of labor is animal labor. The only groups which exist in society are economic groups. One economic group, called the proletariat, represents the class of animal laborers who produce all wealth and value. Members of this class work for another class, called the bourgeois, whose members do no work because they claim to live by their minds. They in actual fact are idlers who exploit and oppress the proletariat, and expropriate the wealth and value which properly belong to them. Human history is a history of economic class struggles in which the individual, with his mind, his rights, his freedoms and his dignity, counts for nothing. The iron laws of matter and machines have decreed that the culmination of history will see the mass extermination of the bourgeois by the proletariat and the onset of the rule of proletarian class dictatorship: "The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guild-master and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes. In the earlier epochs of history, we find almost everywhere a complicated arrangement of society into various orders, a manifold gradation of social rank. In ancient Rome we have patricians, knights, plebeians, slaves; in the Middle Ages, feudal lords, vassals, guildmasters, journeymen, apprentices, serfs; in almost all of these classes, again, subordinate gradations. The modern bourgeois society that has sprouted from the ruins of feudal society has not done away with class antagonisms. It has but established new classes, new conditions of oppression, new forms of struggle in place of the old ones. Our epoch, the epoch of the bourgeois, possesses, however, this distinct feature: it has simplified class antagonisms. Society as a whole is more and more splitting up into two great hostile camps, into two great classes directly facing each other—Bourgeois and Proletariat." (Communist Manifesto by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels). See Marxists proclaim that a progressive society is a multitribe society standing united against liberal individualism and Enlightenment ideals. See them promote the religion of transgenderism which proclaims, in defiance of science, that sex has no relation to DNA and can be changed at will by human intervention. See them condemn all criticisms of Marxism as forms of hate speech and move to censor them online and offline. See them rejects color blind and gender blind laws and promote policies of discrimination on the basis of race and sex in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. See them reject the existence of individuals and promote the politics of gender, race, class, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation as the highest expression of human rights: "President Donald Trump's US Department of State is adding new reporting parameters to the annual Country reports of Human Rights Practices to include 'chemical and surgical mutilation of children' that attempt to modify sex', a department official told Breitbart News. The agency will also include purported hate speech laws that infringe on freedom of speech as well as diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) policies that discriminate against workers on the basis of race, the official said. 'In recent years, new destructive ideologies have given safe harbor to human rights violations', State Department Principal Deputy Spokesperson Tommy Pigott said. 'The Trump administration will not allow these human rights violations, such as the mutilation of children, laws that infringe on free speech, and racially discriminatory employment practices, to go unchecked. We are saying enough is enough.' " (State Department To Include Sex Changes On Minors, 'Hate Speech' Laws In Human Rights Reports by Katherine Hamilton). Fascism. See fascists reject liberal democracy in the name of national conservatism. See them officially reject Marxism as wokeism, but like Marxism reject individual rights and promote collectivism, but promote it now in the name of nation, race and white power. See them promote swastika politics under the banners of national sovereignty, and see a dangerous antiEnlightenment movement spread across the world: "The Economist magazine warns this week of the 'growing peril' of a national conservatism that is spreading like wildfire around the planet. National conservatism is 'dangerous and it's spreading', The Economist intones forebodingly in this week's cover story. 'Liberals need to find a way to stop it.' Today, Donald Trump, Viktor Orban, and 'a motley crew of Western politicians' have constructed 'a statist, antiwoke conservatism that puts national sovereignty before the individual', the magazine opines. 'These national conservatives are increasingly part of a global movement with its own networks of thinkers and leaders bound by a common ideology', the article declares. 'They sense that they own conservatism now—and they may be right.' " (The Economist Panics Over 'Growing Peril' Of National Conservatism by Thomas Williams). Islam. See Muslims increase in power and influence across the world. See the world's capital cities light up in green in celebration of Islam. See Islamic terror transform nations into Ground Zeros. See homes, schools, offices and businesses echo with the cries of Allahu Akbar. See freedom towers bombed into rubble and innocent civilians murdered by the tens of thousands. See liberal democracy lie submerged before a rising tide of tyranny and superstition flowing in from the East, and see the submission and surrender of the West: "This week, New York State lit sixteen government landmarks green to celebrate the so called Muslim American Heritage Month. Governor Kathy Hochul issued a formal proclamation. For the first time, the state officially sanctified January as a month of celebration. Among the buildings glowing green was One World Trade Center—the Freedom Tower—built on the graves of nearly 3,000 Americans murdered on September 11, 2001. The very site of the deadliest Islamic jihad attack in history was illuminated in Islamic green—not in mourning, not in remembrance, not in warning—but in celebration. This was submission. What exactly is the heritage being honored? Because heritage is not branding, it is not a carefully curated set of success stories stripped of context. Heritage includes history. And that history includes blood. If New York insists on lighting sixteen buildings, then Americans have every right to remember sixteen Islamic and jihad terror attacks carried out on US soil, attacks that form an undeniable part of the record the political class now demands we ignore. So instead of green lights, how about truth? Ground Zero is where Americans were murdered while terrorists shouted Allahu Akbar. Lighting the Freedom Tower green was not unity. It was desecration. And it told every honest American exactly where New York stands now. New York has surrendered." (Muslim American Heritage Month At Ground Zero: A Line New York Should Never Have Crossed, RAIR Foundation, January 2, 2026). Christianity. See Christians reject reason in the name of the gospel of Christ crucified. See them proclaim that all people are sinners because they were born in the world of matter, and they need Jesus to save them and set them free. See them promote the morality of sacrifice founded by Jesus. See them proclaim that the path to human salvation and perfection resides in having faith in Christ, seeing the presence of Christ, bearing witness to Christ, engaging with Christ, and fighting for the Christianization of the West: "In the wake of Charlie Kirk's assassination, Kirk's life, faith, and political vision for America have taken central stage in online and real life discussion. quick flip through Kirk's videos at college campuses, or perusing his X timeline, reveals that Kirk often preached the gospel of Christ crucified. He was not ashamed: 'We are all sinners. We need Jesus. Jesus sets us free, redeems us, and is our savior. Accept Jesus in your life', and 'Jesus defeated death so you can live.' Yet Charlie was not merely a public evangelist. His platform was the American political scene, and especially college campuses. Kirk's approach was not that found among mainstream evangelicals over the last generation of 'faithful presence', 'Christian witness', and 'cultural engagement'. Instead, Kirk believed in the Christianization of America, including our political institutions and elite officials." (Charlie Kirk, Christian Nationalist by Ben Crenshaw). The Late Modern Age. The late modern age is a pitch black forest carpeted by poisonous mushrooms. The lights of civilization have gone out and the proliferating mushrooms are in four varieties. The West has returned to the Dark Ages, its first period marked by the tyranny of the Catholic Church, but the key players now are Marxists, fascists, Muslims and Christians. Marxists and Muslims have joined together in an alliance, and the former laud the latter as freedom fighters resisting the oppressive regime of liberal democracy. Marxist groups, such as ANSWER Coalition, Code Pink, Party for Socialism and Liberation, Peace and Freedom Party, and Democratic Socialists of America, have joined the armies of Palestinian terror in a war against the West: "Leftists like to pose as human rights advocates. But the Left's self proclaimed zeal for human rights protection of the 'oppressed' is highly selective. Palestinian terrorists (whom the Left calls 'resistance fighters') are 'oppressed victims' of Israeli oppression, according to the Left's Orwellian Newspeak. At the same time, such far left groups as ANSWER Coalition, Code Pink, Party for Socialism and Liberation, Peace and Freedom Party, and Democratic Socialists of America have not hesitated in the past to rally in support of the Iranian theocracy's repressive regime." (The Left, Protests and Double Standards by Joseph Klein). In the late modern age, mystics and materialists, placed on the throne of absolute power by the masses, have swept the Enlightenment into the dustbin of history.

KING KONG VERSUS TYRANNOSAURUS REX

Non compos mentis. This phrase coined by the ancient Romans was their description of insanity, and has been used ever since to describe individuals whose minds are so disordered that they experience delusions and hallucinations and are detached from all reality. Founded in 1247 in London, the Bethlem Royal Hospital is Europe's oldest mental hospital. Nicknamed Bedlam, it has inspired horror literature down through the centuries, and its nickname entered the language as frightening synonym for a state of uproar and confusion. The patients at mental hospitals fall into two main categories, which define the two main manifestations of mental illness. One group consists of those who believe that only matter exists, and that what is called mind is a phantom without basis in reality. The other group consists of those who believe that mind is the primary reality or the sole reality, and that matter is either a secondary reality or else is totally unreal. The first group is called materialists, while the second group is called mystics, and these two groups ever battle each other in venues great and small, battle each other in homes and families, on streets and squares, in schools and offices, in cities, nations and civilizations, and battle each other for the control of the world. Representing the two main forms of psychosis, the materialists and the mystics dominate the death stages of civilization, the end time in which the masses have abandoned reason, common sense and ordinary experience, and descended into unbalanced views of man and existence. In his masterwork, The Decline And Fall Of The Roman Empire, Edward Gibbon describes the cause of civilizational decline: "I have described the triumph of barbarism and religion". Barbarism and religion, materialism and mysticism, Germanic hordes and Christian agitators, who would construct a world of tyranny and superstition on the ruins of Classical culture. In the present age of the West, the age of decline, which commenced in the twentieth century, the materialists and the mystics have achieved dominating power and influence, and again, as in ancient Rome, battle for control. In the West, they are represented by Marxists and their fascist offshoots, on the materialists' side, and by Christians and Muslims, on the mystics' side, and in the twenty first century, the West is trapped in a state of free fall into bedlam. The greatest theater of war between the materialists and mystics is the greatest nation in the West. In a terrifying illustration of the age old adage that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently decayed and rotted from within, the arsenal and policeman of the free world has succumbed to the war between materialists and mystics. In the twenty first century, the United States of America has fallen under the control of materialists and mystics and is a bankrupt shadow of its former self. Look at America in the present day and see the Marxist Left and the Christian Right reenact the forces which felled ancient Rome, and see a constitutional republic conceived in the Enlightenment, conceived in the age exalting reason and freedom, have its remaining hours and days numbered on a clock and calendar. Marxist Left. Look at America today and see Marxists proclaim that a progressive society is a communist society. It is a Soviet society which has abolished the right to private property. It is a religious society which sacrifices individual rights on the altar of a god called the Collective. It is a class war and race war society which condemns capitalism as a regime of white supremacy. It is governed by the Marxist pledge to destroy every last trace of individual freedom. It renames streets and squares after communist agitators and terrorists. It condemns capitalism as a regime of police killing and brutality. It promotes communism in the name of housing justice for all. It promotes communism in the name of the homeless. It promotes a communist bloc as a tenant bloc. It condemns the morality of individual strength and self reliance and promotes a morality of individual dependence and sacrifice for the sake of the totality. It is ruled by the iron hand of tenant czars, communist czars and total control czars. It seeks to abolish private property and exterminate white homeowners in the name of black justice. It seeks to sacrifice the individual good on the altar of the collective good and establish state property as the sole legal form of property. It seeks to nationalize private businesses and landlords. It seeks to violate constitutional rights by placing the individual under the control of the state. It seeks to reduce cities and nations to homes for the poor now reduced to wards of the state. It seeks to collectivize individuals and confiscate their property in the name of shared equity. It seeks to expropriate white people in the name of people of color. It has declared total war on white families and white landlords in the name of black proletarian revolution. It condemns home ownership as a weapon of white supremacy. It seeks to implement the creed of Karl Marx and Mao Zedong and establish government as a totalitarian authority, ending all freedom, and dictating all thought, action, housing and welfare. It seeks to transform government into an almighty builder of people, lives, homes and businesses, and to overthrow the institutions of liberal democracy: "New York City Mayor Zohran Mamdani is off to a glorious communist start. His new Tenant Czar, Cea Weaver, has just declared that they will systematically dismantle private property rights in favor of a Soviet style collectivism in order to stomp out 'white supremacy'. It should come as no shock that Weaver is a high ranking operative within the Democratic Socialists of America (DSA), and she is a communist sympathizer. Mamdani chose her specifically to handle the city's housing policy. That appointment fits nicely with his horrific Marxist pledge to 'replace the frigidity of rugged individualism with the warmth of collectivism.' According to the New York Post, Weaver pushed to 'Elect more communists' in December 2017 as a Harlem street corner was being renamed in honor of former Manhattan Representative Vito Marcantonio, who was a communist. She's also a cop hater. 'The Police Are Just People The State Sanctions To Murder With Immunity.' she posted in 2020 after the death of George Floyd, according to the New York Post. She previously led Housing Justice for All, a Marxist coalition of groups representing tenants and homeless New Yorkers, and its sister organization, the New York State Tenant Bloc. It's not like New Yorkers weren't warned this was coming. Weaver has previously focused on property rights as a racial imperative, attacking white homeowners. In a June 13, 2018, social media post, Weaver wrote, 'Seize private property!' 'The reality is that for centuries, we have really treated property as an individualized good and not as a collective good', Weaver proclaimed, taking a page directly from Karl Marx. She spouts communist drivel about 'shared equity' and vows to target 'white families' and 'some POC (people of color) families who are homeowners.' She aims to force homeowners into a 'different relationship to property' than free Americans have always had. Mao would be proud. Weaver posted on social media in 2019 that 'homeownership is a weapon of white supremacy masquerading as wealth building public policy.' 'We'll transition from treating property as an individual good to a collective good', she promised on X. 'Whites especially will be impacted.' This should be a huge wake up call to anyone owning a home in New York City. Landlord is not a dirty word. They are private business owners for the most part. What Weaver and Mamdani have in mind is seizing private property and making it available to all. It is not only unconstitutional, but it will also turn all of NYC into one big third world slum. See Venezuela. 'Without landlords, how do you build and maintain housing? You think the government is going to do it? Look at NYCHA [New York City Housing Authority complexes]', Humberto Lopes, founder and CEO of the Gotham Housing Alliance, angrily commented. 'You put a system in place to destroy landlords? he asked." (Mamdani's Communist 'Tenant Czar' Wants To Seize 'White Supremacist' Private Property by Terresa Monroe-Hamilton).

The Christian Right. Look at America today and see the Christian Right proclaim that a moral society is founded on faith and family and not reason and liberty. Communism is evil, not because it violates the individual's absolute right to live and work for himself, but because it replaces the God of Christianity with a new god called the Collective as the absolute ruler over the people. Islam is evil, not because it rejects reason in favor of faith, but because its particular faith is not faith in Christ but faith in Allah and his Prophet. The conservative mind is a Christian mind and not a rational mind. The source of all morality is the Christian Bible and not reason and science. America must be a Christian nation with a Christian identity enforcing the Biblical world view. The only basis of human freedom is Jesus and his prophets on Mount Sinai. America must support Israel, not because it is a Western Enlightenment liberal democracy, but because it is the ancestral homeland of Christianity: "Let me begin with a confession. As a student in the 1960s, fighting the New Left on campus, I thought conservatism was synonymous with anticommunism and capitalism. It wasn't until I read Russell Kirk's monumental book, The Conservative Mind, that I understood that conservatism has a distinguished heritage and a solid intellectual foundation. Conservatives believe the future should be guided by the past. Public policy should be measured on the standard of faith, family and freedom. We believe in the eternal values set forth in the Bible. Before we had the US Constitution, Americans had the Bible. We believe America is a Christian nation—not that nonChristians are any less American, but that our nation was founded by Christians with a biblical world view. We believe America has a special relationship with Israel. Without biblical Israel and the encounter at Sinai, there would be no America. As President Coolidge so eloquently put it, 'Hebraic mortar cemented the foundations of American democracy.' Israel is more than a bulwark against the spread of radical Islam. It speaks to the essence of our national identity. To turn our backs on Israel would be to betray ourselves." (Conservatism Is About More Than Taxes And Tariffs by Don Feder). America Today. Between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans is a land called Skull Island. On it two monsters battle for control. They are nightmare horrors emerging from the underworld of moral, spiritual and intellectual death. They are living, breathing, roaming, roaring monsters of mental illness. One monster is the insanity of materialism, which denies the existence of human reason and consciousness, while the other monster is the insanity of mysticism, which projects mind, spirit and otherworldly existence as the highest reality, and devalues the world of matter. One monster breathes the infernal flames of the Marxist Left, while the other monster breathes the infernal flames of the Christian Right. In the twenty first century, they rule over Skull Island. It was formerly the United States of America.

THE TRANSGENDERIST PROPAGANDA MACHINE

In the big lie there is always a certain force of credibility. For the broad masses of a nation are always more easily corrupted in the deeper strata of their emotional nature than consciously or voluntarily, and thus in the primitive simplicity of their minds they more readily fall victims to the big lie than the small lie, since they themselves often tell small lies in little matters but would be ashamed to resort to large scale falsehoods. It would never come into their heads to fabricate colossal untruths, and they would not believe others could have the impudence to distort the truth so infamously. Even though the facts which prove this to be so may be brought clearly to their minds, they will still doubt and waver and will continue to think there may be some other explanation. For the big lie always leaves traces behind it, even after it has been nailed down, a fact which is known to all expert liars in this world and to all who conspire together in the art of lying. (Mein Kampf by Adolf Hitler). The big lie, the gross denial of truth, has been a staple of religious and political propaganda for thousands of years. The Abrahamic religions propagate the big lie that there is a God in heaven who can make existence appear out of absolute nothing, and can make a triangle have four sides. Marxism propagates the big lie that wealth and value do not come from the use of the mind but from the use of muscles, and that people who engage in intellectual work in fact perform no work at all, and are idlers who exploit and oppress the class of muscle workers called the proletariat. Before an audience of the masses, big lies are difficult to lay to rest; their very colossal nature makes them linger like the cheshire cat grin, which remained long after the cat's body had vanished; and makes them remain in currency long after facts have come to the fore. In the twenty first century, a big lie is being propagated by the Western political and cultural establishment, a lie which like its infamous predecessors is spreading an epidemic of mass psychosis. This is the lie propagated by transgenderism that human sex can be changed. The voices of this religion know it is a big lie and are propagating it in the expectation that it will endure for an eternity in the minds of the masses. Science says that human sex is determined by DNA and is stamped in every cell of the body. Science says that it not possible for an individual to transition into the opposite sex. Science says that the notion of gender identity refers to genetic reality and not to human feelings. Science says that sex is assigned by genes and not by human wishes. Science says that there are no such individuals as transgender females or transgender males, and that socalled transgender females are males, and socalled transgender males are females. Science says that the terms "biological male" and "biological female" are redundant because there exist no other types of males or females. Science says that puberty blockers and genitalia altering surgeries are not "gender affirming care" but forms of sexual mutilation. Big Lie. Now look at the establishment and see it proclaim that males who identify as females are in fact females, and females who identify as males are in fact males. The terms male and female cannot be biologically defined. Sex is not an immutable characteristic and has nothing to do with chromosomes. Individuals who accept the objective reality of their gender should be termed cisgender individuals and not simply normal, rational, sane individuals. Marxist gender ideology overrides the facts of biological reality. Males who identify as females should be allowed to play on women's sports teams. Males who identify as females should be allowed to use facilities, such as showers and bathrooms, reserved for females: "Liberal [Marxist] leaning Supreme Court Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson made remarks during oral arguments on Tuesday in two cases about state laws barring males, including transgender identifying males, from female sports teams, indicating she still does not know how to define what a woman is. During her confirmation hearing in 2022 to replace the retiring Justice Stephen Breyer, Jackson made headlines for her infamous refusal to define what a woman is, saying, 'No, I can't', and 'I'm not a biologist', when questioned about the biological reality of human adult females. On Tuesday, Jackson used the language of radical leftist gender ideologues, including terms like 'sex assigned at birth'—sex is not 'assigned' but is instead an immutable characteristic one is born with —'cisgender women', which is activist speak for women who simply embrace the reality of their sex, and 'transgender girls', which is activist speak for boys who identify as girls. 'Similarly, here, you have the overarching classification, you know, everybody has to be—play on the team that is the same as their sex at birth, but then you have a gender identity definition that is operating within that, meaning a distinction, meaning that for cisgender girls, they can play consistent with their gender identity; for transgender girls, they can't', Jackson said during the case West Virginia vs BPJ. Jackson continued by parsing what a girl is and if only a 'girl assigned at birth; would qualify for a girls' sports team. 'I guess I was getting at the—what I understood the Chief Justice to be trying to discuss—which was this notion that this is really just about the definition of who—that we accept that you can separate boys and girls, and we are now looking at the definition of a girl and we're saying only people who were girl assigned at birth qualify', she said. Other justices, including conservative leaning ones like Justice Amy Coney Barrett, also used the language of gender ideologues when asking questions, which caused concern among women's sports advocates and conservatives." (Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson Still Stumped By What A Woman Is During Trans Athletes Cases by Katherine Hamilton). Big Lie. Look at the establishment proclaim that the scientifically established facts that males and females possess different reproductive systems, hormones and chromosomes do not in fact exist. There exists no scientific definition of the differences between males and females. Laws prohibiting transgender females, or males pretending to be females, from using women's facilities and playing on women's sports teams violate civil liberties and laws against sexual discrimination: "Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg became famous for her work on the ACLU's Women's Rights Project. Her work was memorialized in On Account of Sex which was also made into a documentary during the heyday of 'RBG' fever. Now the ACLU is vocally denying the existence of women. Some years back the ACLU filed a motion 'to deny the allegation that human beings are sexually dimorphic, divided into males and females. each with reproductive systems, hormones and chromosomes that result in significant differences between men and women.' Now in court over a transgender case in which a sympathetic male defendant wants to play against girls, justices asked the ACLU lawyer how he defines men, women, boys, girls and sex differences. And his response was to argue that he has no definition and that no definition exists. Chief Justice John Roberts grilled Block for making the suggestion. 'Title IX prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex, it's a statutory term, it must mean something', Roberts said. 'You're arguing here there is discrimination on the basis of sex, and how can we decide that question without knowing what sex means in Title IX?' Roberts asked. 'I don't think the purpose of Title IX is to have an accurate definition of sex. I think the purpose is to make sure that sex isn't being used to discriminate by denying opportunities. I wouldn't look to whether or not to classify B.P.J. as male or female, I think the question is, 'is she [he] being denied an opportunity because of that classification?' If there's no definition of sex, then what does protection on account of sex even mean? It's like refusing to define elections and then insisting on a legal intervention based on the right to vote. It's pure gibberish. The woke sexual identity politics creed at once seeks to demolish any coherent definition of sex while at the same time using laws created to protect women to do so leading to a refusal to define sex and a demand that men pretending to be women be protected on account of sex." (ACLU Can't Define 'Sex' In Transgender Supreme Court Case by Daniel Greenfield). Big Lie. Look at the establishment proclaim that males who pretend to be females should be referred to with the pronouns she and her. Those who refuse to play along with transgenderism, and refuse to deny the genetic reality of gender, are ignorant, bigoted, mean spirited, opposed to true, higher science, and followers of the world's chief hate crusader, Donald Trump. Individuals who deny the existence of XX chromosome pairs defining females and XY chromosome pairs defining males, and assert their legal rights to be treated as members of the opposite sex, are courageous, heroic, persecuted defenders of truth, justice and human rights: "The Washington Post is taking heat for gaslighting with a gushing and highly dramatized story of a 'transgender athlete', a boy who identified as a girl and who went on to win two girls' track championships in Washington State in 2024 and this year. The Post tells the story of high school runner Veronica Garcia, but the tale reads more like the script of a hagiographic TV tear jerker one might see on the Hallmark Channel than a news story. Naturally, Garcia is framed as a 'she' and 'her' throughout the piece, and the opposition to trans athletes competing in female sports is presented as mean spirited, religious nut cases who don't understand science, not to mention are followers of hater in chief Donald Trump. García earned national infamy in 2024 when a video of his Washington State Championship win in the girls' 400m showed him running many yards ahead of his closest competition. The Post story is unmistakably protrans, and García is presented as beleaguered, attacked, wronged, and a target of bigotry. Throughout the long story, Garcia is the downtrodden but plucky hero of his own tale. His opponents are presented as hateful, mean, lying, and uninformed. And the Washington Post hopes you will come away being ashamed that you don't want men taking sports opportunities away from women." (WaPo Laments 'Hard' Life Of Trans Athlete Who Won Girls' Track Record by Warner Todd Huston). Big Lie. E pur si muove. After officially recanting his view that the earth revolves around the sun, and officially supporting the geocentric view of the Catholic Church that the earth is the immoveable center of the universe, Galileo Galilei exclaimed to the Catholic Inquisition which jailed him: E pur si muove, meaning And yet it moves. Resounding down through the centuries, this iconic phrase signifies defiance by reason in the face of religion, and signifies that facts remain facts regardless of belief. Four centuries after the persecution of Galileo, it is the cry of antitransgenderists before the inquisitions of the establishment.

RED FOOD POISONING KILLS MILLIONS

We cannot see them but they live in food. They are microbes, salmonella, listeria, bacteria, viruses, molds and parasites, and when present in the food we eat, they kill people. The most important preventive measures against food poisoning are washing one's hands before eating, cooking food thoroughly and refrigerating food properly. Every year, food poisoning kills thousands of people throughout the world, and is one of the most common causes of acute illness. There is a type of food poisoning far more deadly than that caused by physical agents, and no physical measures or public health policies can halt its advance. It is the poisoning of food by the politicization of food, and it is killing the soul of the people and writing the final lines of civilization. The end stage of civilization occurs when the masses abandon reason and embrace religion, and religion spreads into every sector of society, and invades every human activity. Everything people do is now held to contain symbolic meaning and is transformed into a statement. Among the number one religions of our present end stage time, after Islam and the Christian Right, is Marxism, and the Marxist politicization of human activities is proceeding apace and poisoning everyday life. In the twenty first century, the advance of Marxism has reached the culinary table and transformed the production, preparation and consumption of food into a religious and political act. In the twenty first century, a multigorgon Marxist monster with the names gender, race, class, culture, ethnicity and sexual orientation has assumed control over kitchens and restaurants throughout the West, and served tribal politics as the specialty of the house. Food Today. Look at food today and see farmers, chefs and food industry professionals transformed into advocates for lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transgenders and nonbinaries. See restaurants transformed into panels, roundtables and workshops promoting the theory and tactics of queer violence. See bars, cafes, beverages, potlucks, food advertising, restaurant management, catering, brewing and food writing transformed into venues for tribal wars seeking to overthrow liberal institutions: "What is LGBTQ+food? What makes food and drink queer? We are pleased to announce a hybrid conference on queer food and drink to be held in Montreal, Quebec, Canada (at McGill University) from May 1-3, 2026. This conference will bring together scholars, activists, artists, journalists, farmers, chefs and other food industry professionals.The conference will include a mixture of panels, roundtables, and workshops. Topics will include but are not limited to: LGBTQIA2S+ cookbooks, farming and land movements, bars, cafes, drinks, potlucks, food advertising, restaurant management, catering, brewing, food writing, health, care, community building and more." See food celebrated as a statement of empowerment of queer folk, trans folk, tribal connections and tribal intersections. See restaurants transformed into beerhalls feeding feminist storm troopers. See restaurants transformed into dense forests feeding LGBT wolves waging war against liberal society and making plans fueled by common hatred toward individual rights. See foraging for food transformed into a search for ideological friends and allies: "Food has long played an important role in queer culture. Lesbian and queer women run feminist restaurants, cafes and coffeehouses have been safe spaces for queer and trans folk where gender norms can be challenged and where female authority is legitimized. During the AIDS epidemic, gay men and their allies centered food as an expression of collective care for those who needed it most. And queer and trans folk have asserted themselves in a restaurant culture largely controlled by white cisgender men. Queers At The Table celebrates the various intersections between queers and food. In its essays, comics, and recipes, the book shows how queer food fosters connections, defies norms, honors legacies, and creates community. Taylor Hartson and Tristian Lee write about a queer farming community in which queerness is part of a broad network of living things to be enjoyed and shared; Danielle Kydd writes about food security issues as faced by LGBTQ2S+ folk; and Blue Delliquanti's comic on urban foraging in Minneapolis demonstrates the role of a queer friend group in a local ecosystem." Today, the group also conducts research and hosts events and educational panels. 'We like to say queer food is us existing in spaces,' Parish said. 'If you're queer, your food is queer; that's pretty much it. It's not a rainbow cupcake or bagel type of situation. That's fun, but that's not what queer food is.' A rainbow cake, Parish added, isn't inherently more queer than a regular cake created by a queer person. 'If the person that curated it, their hands and their energy and their community building, is queer, then it's queer food.' " (*What Is Queer Food? See cookbook authors and restaurant critics transformed into Marxist tract peddlers and street brawlers. See food hospitality transformed into an expression of the gay will to power paraded in the name of civil rights. See dinners transformed into a main meal of Marxist agitation, hosting and promotion of queerness: "John Birdsall started writing about queer food when 'nobody I knew or read remotely talked about queer food', he said. In 2013, he wrote an article for Lucky Peach magazine titled America, Your Food Is So Gay about three gay men—James Beard and Richard Olney, both chefs and cookbook authors, and restaurant critic Craig Claiborne—who Birdsall argued were architects of modern American food in the mid to late 20th century. The article went on to win a James Beard Award for food and culture writing. 'For me, queer food isn't necessarily focused on dishes or recipes', said Birdsall, who is based in Tucson, Arizona. 'It's focused on those voices and those individuals who transformed cookbooks, for instance, transformed restaurant spaces, transformed how queer people could be visible in public spaces.' Birdsall cited James Baldwin as one such transformational figure. Baldwin, a gay civil rights activist and one of the most influential writers of the 20th century, wrote about 'shared hospitality being a queer virtue', he said. Birdsall added that Baldwin's distinctly queer philosophy of 'complete acceptance' around a table marked 'a really significant evolution in American food.' 'James Baldwin had this sense of the specific food not mattering—it's how you come to the table, who's invited to the table, who's considered family around the table', Birdsall said, adding that Baldwin would host dinners at his home in France with a rotating cast of cultural icons, including dancer and singer Josephine Baker and singer-songwriter Nina Simone." See restaurants spring out of the pages of lesbian novels, memoirs and literature. See cookbooks transformed into manuals of Marxist political control. See food recipes transformed into instructions serving up heaping dishes of radical art, radical lesbianism and radical drug culture: "Elizabeth Blake, a professor specializing in gender and sexuality studies, food studies and global modernist literature, said her book about depictions of queerness in modernist literature was inspired in part by The Alice B. Toklas Cook Book, written by the longtime partner of Gertrude Stein, a legendary lesbian novelist. Toklas published the cookbook in 1954, after Stein's death, to support herself. 'It's this kind of very gossipy memoir, where she knew that a lot of people who would buy it not to make her recipes, but to get the dirt on [Pablo] Picasso', who was friends with Stein and painted a portrait of her, Blake said. The recipes, Blake added, 'are also totally over the top.' It has a famous recipe for hash brownies and a recipe for fish with three sauces arranged to mimic cubism that Toklas served to Picasso. Blake described the text as a 'totally radical' and queer take on the cookbook." See food transformed into statements of cannabis rights and gay rights. See restaurants, cafes and coffeehouses transformed into venues for feminist and lesbian revolution. See food spaces transformed into spaces for queer political organizing. See food celebrated as a special substance promoting the growth and health of Marxist happiness and world revolution: "Alex Ketchum, a professor at McGill University's Institute for Gender, Sexuality and Feminist Studies and a cofounder of the Queer Food Conference, said she asks three questions when she's deciding whether something should be categorized as queer food: Who's creating it? Is it community centered? Does it have roots in queer history? Ketchum pointed to Mary Rathbun's brownies as an example. Rathbun was a medical cannabis rights activist who became known in the 1980s as Brownie Mary for a weed brownie recipe she made for AIDS patients who experienced loss of appetite and severe weight loss. Ketchum is also the author of Ingredients For Revolution: A History Of American Feminist Restaurants, Cafes And Coffeehouses, which is the first history of more than 230 feminist and lesbian feminist restaurants and coffeehouses in the US from 1972 to the present. She said queer community spaces that serve or provide food create unique spaces for both joy and political organizing. 'I think food allows us this way to take on the challenging and the difficult and yet kind of reaffirm our own community and then create a space that reinvigorates and literally nourishes us', she said." (What Is Queer Food? We Asked LGBTQ Foodies And Chefs To Define It by Jo Yurcaba). Food Today. The politicization of thought and action has been a feature of totalitarian movements for centuries. Seeking to establish total control over the individual, they stamp their power in families, homes, schools, offices and businesses, and leave no stone unturned in their quest for total coordination. Proletarian logic, Aryan physics, critical race theory and feminist theories of knowledge are grim monuments of the destruction of the mind perpetrated by religion. In the twenty first century, queer food culture has entered the ranks of religion's gallery of infamy.

CHRISTIANITY AND ISLAM: DESTROYERS OF WORLDS

When a person, a society, a nation or a culture goes bankrupt, it has reached the end of its resources, and can no longer continue. These resources can be material or spiritual, but when they are gone, the entity commences a process of decline and disappearance. On the continent of Europe, two cultures have emerged over the course of two thousand years and have gone bankrupt, and one of them has disappeared, after they abandoned reason. The Apollonian culture of the Greeks and Romans, exalting reason at its very core, exalting reason by placing Apollo, the god of reason, light, perfection and the sun, at the summit of its pantheon, commenced a process of decline when it abandoned reason and adopted Christianity. The Faustian culture of the West, which emerged in 1000 AD on the long abandoned ruins of Rome, a culture which exalts both reason and the will, reason expressed in the Enlightenment and the will expressed in a Faustian striving and power to infinity, is abandoning reason in the present day and embracing religions. These religions are four in number, and they are nailing shut the coffin of the West. They are Marxism, fascism, Christianity and Islam. Marxism and fascism are religions homegrown in the West, while Christianity and Islam are Eastern religions; but Christianity was present at the founding of the West and the founding barbarians way back had converted to Christianity. Islam in the present day is being let through the gates of the West and encouraged to proliferate by Marxists, who have formed an alliance with it in a campaign to overthrow Enlightenment institutions. These two Eastern religions, Christianity and Islam, have been destroyers of cultures; the first is engraved on the tombstone of Classical culture; while the second is in the processs of being engraved on the coming tombstone of the West. Look at the ascendancy of these Eastern cancers of degenerate souls, these cancers worshiping a God in heaven held to be nonphysical, unperceivable, nonlocatable, nontemporal, and possessed of infinite power such that it can make existence emerge from absolute nothingness and can make a triangle possess four sides, and see what happens when human sanity and common sense are abandoned, and an intellectual vacuum is created in society. See what happens when people who are unable to function as adults and unable to deal with problems in living achieve the reins of power. Christianity. 410 AD. Classical culture is under attack by barbarians as it has never been under attack before. Led by Alaric, an army of 40,000 Goths invades the city which once ruled the Roman Empire. For the first time in 800 years, Rome falls and is ransacked. The "eternal city" falls to an external enemy, and its fall prompts weeping in the streets from those proclaiming "when Rome falls, the world will also fall." But Rome spiritually fell a century before, when Emperor Constantine rejected pagan reason, rejected Apollo and Sol Invictus, the Roman sun god, the chief god of the empire, and established Christianity as the state religion. The present invading Goths have converted to Christianity and seek to continue the imposition of the faith. Look at the Christians in Rome and see destroyers of rational order. See attackers in the service of zealotry move against reason with stones and iron bars. See primitive criminals in packs, gangs, swarms and hordes descend on the temples of reason. See the columns, pedestals and statues of reason smashed and mutilated. See the gods and goddesses of reason decapitated and hurled onto the ground. See the monuments of reason torn down, plundered and defaced. See reason condemned as a demon and idol and trampled underfoot. See the lamps, lights, eyes and faces of reason extinguished and reduced to dust, and see civilization fall dark and silent, and merge into the desert sand, before the triuimph of Christianity: "The destroyers came from out of the desert. Palmyra must have been expecting them: for years, marauding bands of bearded, black robed zealots, armed with little more than stones, iron bars and an iron sense of righteousness had been terrorizing the east of the Roman Empire. Their attacks were primitive, thuggish, and very effective. These men moved in packs–later in swarms of as many as five hundred–and when they descended utter destruction followed. Their targets were the temples and the attacks could be astonishingly swift. Great stone columns that had stood for centuries collapsed in an afternoon; statues that had stood for half a millennium had their faces mutilated in a moment; temples that had seen the rise of the Roman Empire fell in a single day. This was violent work, but it was by no means solemn. The zealots roared with laughter as they smashed the ‘evil’, ‘idolatrous’ statues; the faithful jeered as they tore down temples, stripped roofs and defaced tombs. Chants appeared, immortalizing these glorious moments. ‘Those shameful things,’ sang pilgrims, proudly; the ‘demons and idols our good Saviour trampled down all together.’ Zealotry rarely makes for good poetry. In this atmosphere, Palmyra’s temple of Athena was an obvious target. The handsome building was an unapologetic celebration of all the believers loathed: a monumental rebuke to monotheism. Go through its great doors and it would have taken your eyes a moment, after the brightness of a Syrian sun, to adjust to the cool gloom within. As they did, you might have noticed that the air was heavy with the smoky tang of incense, or perhaps that what little light there was came from a scatter of lamps left by the faithful. Look up and, in their flickering glow, you would have seen the great figure of Athena herself. Because when the men entered the temple they took a weapon and smashed the back of Athena’s head with a single blow so hard that it decapitated the goddess. The head fell to the floor, slicing off that nose, crushing the once smooth cheeks. Athena’s eyes, untouched, looked out over a now disfigured face. Mere decapitation wasn’t enough. More blows fell, scalping Athena, striking the helmet from the goddess’s head, smashing it into pieces. Further blows followed. The statue fell from its pedestal, then the arms and shoulders were chopped off. The body was left on its front in the dirt; the nearby altar was sliced off just above its base. Only then does it seem that these men–these Christians–felt satisfied that their work was done. They melted out once again into the desert. Behind them the temple fell silent. The votive lamps, no longer tended, went out. On the floor, the head of Athena slowly started to be covered by the sands of the Syrian desert. The ‘triumph’ of Christianity had begun." (The Darkening Age: The Christian Destruction Of The Classical World by Catherine Nixey). Islam. An Abrahamic faith based on the Quran and the teachings of Muhammad, Islam has two billion followers throughout the world, and is spreading like wildfire throughout the West. It is spreading through mass popular appeal. Through ballot boxes dominated by the neighbors next door. Through the conquest of ideas and opinions. Through the Marxist suppression of antiIslamic views as criminal hate speech. Through propaganda campaigns reaching across cyberspace. Through subversion of social media pages. Through bot networks streaming hate and extremism. Through Marxist campaigns in support of Islam and the Muslim Brotherhood, and targeting Israel for total destruction. Through Marxist NGOS, media channels and political parties. Through Marxist campaigns justifying Islam, antisemitism, antizionism and the mass murder of Jews in the name of resistance to capitalist oppression, colonialism and genocide. Through elections of Muslims to local, state, provincial and federal offices. Through mobile squads of Muslims and Marxists gunning down the opposition in congresses, campuses, streets and squares: "What once required 500 years of military conquest now unfolds in just 50 years through immigration and demographics. Europe's Muslim population has surged from less than 1% in 1970 to a projected 10 to 14% by 2050, a transformation occurring two to three times faster than historical Islamic conquests. Western civilization faces not conquest but replacement through its own democratic processes and ideological paralysis. This transformation is silent not because it's invisible--the changes are obvious--but because Western societies have criminalized discussion of it. The takeover operates on two fronts: physical replacement through demographics and ideological conquest through digital warfare. Physical replacement requires no invasion–only open borders, welfare incentives, and a fertility differential that guarantees Muslim demographic growth while native populations collapse. Ideological conquest has weaponized social media on an unprecedented scale. State actors–primarily Iran, Qatar and Turkey–invest billions in bot networks and media empires amplifying proIslamic and antiIsrael narratives. The Muslim Brotherhood operates through seemingly independent channels: media outlets, NGOs, political parties, and mosques. Through 'patient extremism', Muslim Brotherhood branches present violence as 'resistance', casting genocidal vows as 'anticolonialism', thereby recruiting Western progressives. The October massacre–when Hamas murdered 1,200 people in the worst antisemitic atrocity since the Holocaust–exposed the advanced stage of this transformation. Through social media manipulation and Muslim Brotherhood infrastructure, the Islamist world has taken control of the narrative, transforming mass murder into resistance against what they claim is a 'genocidal' oppressor. The political infiltration is undeniable. In the United Kingdom, where 32% of Muslims favor Sharia law, and 48% sympathize more with Hamas than Israel, Muslim mayors now govern London, Oxford, Brighton and Rotherham. In Canada, Calgary's former three term Muslim mayor now leads Alberta's New Democratic Party, positioning him as the potential premier of Canada's energy heartland. America's trajectory is equally alarming. Representative Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, founding member of The Squad–whose members repeatedly attack Israel–emerged as a leading 2028 Democratic presidential contender." (The Islamification Of Western Democracies: The Great, Dangerous, Silent Takeover by Eliyahu Haddad). Destroyers of Worlds. Rome, 312 AD. Emperor Constantine sees a Christian Cross in the sky at the Battle of Milvan Bridge. Under this Cross of light, he sees a message from God: Under this sign, you shall conquer. He adopts the Cross as his battle standard, is vouchsafed victory and becomes the sole ruler of the Roman Empire, transforming it into a Christian empire and extinguishing the soul of the Classical world. The twenty first century in the West. A Red-Green axis composed of Marxists and Muslims works through a shared hatred of Enlightenment institutions and is extinguishing the lights of civilization. Muslim waves of death and destruction are sweeping through open borders and are allowed to settle and multiply. Two enemies from the East, Christianity and Islam, have struck Europe over the course of two thousand years and dug its grave.

THE TRAGEDY OF DONALD TRUMP

There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so. Thus speaks Hamlet in Shakespeare's most famous play, The Tragedy of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark. Relativist and skeptical, Hamlet, the tragic figure whose character flaws bring him down as they evoke abject terror in the audience, proclaims nothing is real except in the mind of the individual. He proclaims there is no truth or morality existing independently of the human will. He proclaims all existence and valuations are the products of contexts and perspectives, and that in the field of human action, as in the animal jungle, might makes right. In the twenty first century, in the former policeman of the free world and former global statue of liberty, a figure has emerged exemplifying tragedy like no other figure in the nation's history. In the twenty first century, the eternal law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently rotted and decayed from within has received the most terrifying illustration imaginable, and is writing the final lines of the story of civilization. In the twenty first century, in the United States of America, a Hamlet has assumed center stage and is disgracing its institutions as he is destroying the credibility of the nation throughout the world. In the twenty first century, Hamlet has sprung out of the pages of Shakespeare and assumed the office of president of the United States, and is striking terror in the hearts of civilized people at home and abroad. His name is Donald Trump and he is the forty fifth and forty seventh president of the United States. Look at his achievements and look at his tragedy, and see a nation in its death throes. Trump's Achievements. Marxist ideas are a cancer on society and Donald Trump has cut back the extragrowths and excrescences of this cancer created under the Obama and Biden administrations. In his first term, he eliminated the penalty imposed on individuals who do not obtain health insurance, a penalty levied under Barack Obama's Affordable Care Act, a penalty forcing the purchase of a product which was without precedent in the nation's history, and advanced the cause of human liberty at the heart of the nation's institutions. In his second term, he has sealed the nation's southern border and ended nationwide crossings by human bacteria. He has affirmed the findings of science that sex is determined by DNA and is fixed and immutable, and has abolished transgender policies and programs in the federal government. He has abolished discrimination on the basis of race and sex, paraded in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion, in the federal government, and returned the government to the policy of equal protection commanded by the constitution, establishing race blind and gender blind selection procedures in federal hiring, promotion and grant making. He has abolished asphyxiative federal regulations on businesses by demanding that federal agencies repeal ten existing regulations for every new regulation they implement. He has abolished environmental regulations curbing greenhouse gas emissions to an unreasonable degree, and abolished regulations unnecessarily reducing oil and natural gas production, thereby boosting national energy production, making America the biggest oil and natural gas producer in the world, and lowering energy prices for consumers. He has abolished the mandate to purchase electric vehicles in the form of government regulations and tax credits, established under Joe Biden's administration, and advanced the cause of human liberty at the heart of the nation's institutions. He has abolished taxes on tips, overtime work and Social Security payments, and made his 2017 tax cuts, feat the largest corporate tax reform in a generation, lowering the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 21 percent, permanent. He has issued an executive order to abolish the Department of Education and to return education to the states, seeking to abolish Marxist indoctrination of students, from kindergarten to collage, by the federal government: "On the campaign trail, Mr Trump promised to close the southern border on Day 1, and he pretty much did. The Trump administration has delivered seven straight months of zero releases at the border. Nationwide crossings remain 92% lower than the peak under the Biden administration. Mr Trump was correct: No new legislation was needed, just a new president willing to enforce the immigration laws already on the books. On his first day in office, Mr Trump ended transgender madness, recognizing that 'women are biologically female, and men are biologically male.' His administration recognized two sexes: male and female. 'These sexes are not changeable and are grounded in fundamental and incontrovertible reality.' Also on his first day in office, Mr Trump signed executive orders to cut funding, dismantle DEI offices, halt equity focused grants and remove DEI from federal hiring and promotion processes. The Trump administration has correctly emphasized merit and equal opportunity instead. Mr Trump has signed an executive order to dismantle the Department of Education. His administration has shifted the Department of Education's functions to other federal agencies. US Secretary of Education Linda McMahon embarked on a 50 state tour to empower local leaders in K-12 education with best practices customized to their localities and specific needs. She is working to put herself out of a job, to break up the federal education bureaucracy and ensure federal taxpayer spending is returned to the states. Mr Trump signed an executive order requiring federal agencies to identify at least 10 existing regulations for repeal for every new regulation they propose to implement. This goes beyond the 'two for one' order of his first term, requiring the total incremental cost of all new rules in a fiscal year to be 'significantly less than zero.' At the Environmental Protection Agency, Administrator Lee Zeldin has targeted regulations, such as the 2009 Endangerment Finding for greenhouse gases, reconsidered emissions standards for oil and gas and repealed stricter coal plant rules in an effort to cut costs, boost energy and increase affordability for consumers. Mr Trump's Energy Department has ushered in an unprecedented era of energy dominance, resulting in record energy production and more affordable prices. Gas prices are at a four year low, averaging about $2.90 per gallon, resulting in more than $500 million in savings for the American people this Christmas. The US leads the world in oil and natural gas production, producing more oil than Saudi Arabia and Russia combined at 24.2 million barrels per day. The US now makes as much natural gas as Russia, Iran and China combined, at 108 billion cubic feet per day. [In the One Big Beautiful Bill] Mr Trump made his 2017 tax cuts permanent, eliminating the tax on tips and exempting overtime and Social Security from taxation for the American public." (Trump's Top 10 Achievements In 2025 by Kelly Sadler). Trump's Tragedy: Greenland. On January 6, 2026, Donald Trump proclaimed that he was considering the use of force to acquire Greenland. On January 11, he directed the United States armed forces to prepare an invasion plan for Greenland. The act of aggression would proceed in defiance of the wishes of Greenlanders. Trump's plan violates the right of self determination of Greenland. This right proceeds from the fact that Greenland is a free society. A free society alone has the right of self determination because its government does not violate the rights of its citizens. Governments which violate the rights of the people and establish a slave society have no right of sovereignty or territorial integrity, and may be invaded by free societies for any reason. There is no right of an individual or a nation to violate human rights. International law which protects the right of national self determination is not a shield for repressive regimes; it is not a blank check for the armies of evil; and it has to be earned by good government conduct. Devoid of moral sanity, Trump's plan has disgraced the nation's statue of liberty as it has violated the nation's constitution, which makes a president's waging of aggressive war a high crime and misdemeanor punishable by removal from office, and tarnished America's reputation for all time to come: "US President Donald Trump has directed senior special forces commanders to begin preparing 'contingency plans for a possible invasion of Greenland', reported the Daily Mail on Sunday. The move, however, has reportedly run into resistance from top military officials who are questioning both its legality and political feasibility. According to the report, Trump has asked the Joint Special Operations Command (JSOC) to draft an invasion plan. However, the proposal is said to be facing pushback from the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who argue that any such operation would be unlawful and lack congressional backing.'The generals think Trump's Greenland plan is crazy and illegal. Meanwhile, political parties in Greenland on Saturday issued a joint statement denouncing US President Donald Trump's pressure to seize the Danish autonomous territory. 'We don't want to be Americans, we want to be Greenlanders', the leaders of five parties in parliament said. 'The future of Greenland must be decided by Greenlanders.' " ('Generals Trying To Deflect Him': Trump Orders Special Forces To Draw Up Greenland Invasion Plan—What We Know, Times of India, January 11, 2026). Trump's plan to annex Greenland is rearing up from the North Atlantic a map, a landmass, a monster and a Manifest Destiny of fascism: "Since returning to the White House, he has spoken of a revived Manifest Destiny and floated what aides call a Donroe Doctrine–an aggressive reimagining of America's claim over the Western Hemisphere. Greenland fits neatly into that world view. It lies geographically in North America, is roughly the size of Alaska, and has just 57,000 inhabitants. Incorporating it would catapult the US past China to become the world's third largest country by landmass, behind only Russia and Canada. For Trump's Make America Great Again movement, that symbolism matters. 'This notion of maps and legacy is important', Berzina has said. 'American greatness, in very literal terms, matters a lot to MAGA.' That may explain why Trump has escalated his language even as allies offer diplomatic off ramps." (Russia, Minerals Or Whim? Why Trump Is After Greenland--And What Are His Options, Times of India, January 8, 2026). Trump's Tragedy: Tariffs. During Donald Trump's second term, he has enacted tariffs affecting all goods imported into the nation. From January to April 2025, the average US tariff rate rose from 2.5 percent to 27 percent, the highest level in over a century. Enacted in the name of social protection of domestic industries and social responsibility of consumers to support domestic industries, Trump's tariffs have inflicted massive cost of living increases on consumers as it has robbed them of freedom of choice. The president who championed freedom of choice in his abolition of the Affordable Care Act's penalty for not obtaining health insurance, and abolished Joe Biden's electric vehicle mandate, has abolished freedom of choice in his imposition of massive, across the board tariffs: "President Donald Trump's tariff policies have significantly harmed the United States economy, burdening American consumers, businesses and workers while dramatically failing to achieve their intended goals. Despite Trump's bold assertions that tariffs would rejuvenate American industry and restore fairness in global trade, economic research unequivocally demonstrates that these policies have backfired, imposing significant and lasting economic damage on the nation. At their core, tariffs function as direct taxes on American consumers, raising the cost of imported goods and ultimately hitting the wallets of working and middle class families hardest. Trump's first round of tariffs in 2019 led to an annual cost increase of approximately 831 dollars per household, according to economists at the New York Federal Reserve. This price surge disproportionately impacts lower income families, undermining their financial security and increasing economic inequality." (Trump's Tariff Disaster: How Protectionism Has Crippled America's Economy by Owen Puckett). America Today. In the twenty first century, America has reached back through the corridors of time and made the ghosts of the Weimar Republic come alive. The streets of Germany during this benighted period were theaters of war between communists and their national socialist ideological brothers. In America in the twenty first century, the Democrat Party, promoting the Marxist rainbow of gender, race, class, culture, ethnicity and sexual orientation politics, has brought back the German Communist Party. Promoting national greatness, expansion, aggression and Manifest Destiny, the Republican Party has brought back the German National Socialist Party. It is led by a tragic figure named Donald Trump.

AMERICA: OUTLAW NATION

Poland, September 1, 1939. The German battleship Schleswig Hollstein opens fire in the Free City of Danzig on the Baltic Sea. The shots are the signals of a German invasion and ring open the curtain on World War II. The free democratic nation of Poland has become the victim of an unprovoked attack by the tanks, guns, bombers, divisions and fighter planes of a nation rendered rabid by the bite of a hate ideology. A fever of racism and nationalism has set Germany ablaze, and the flames have reached Poland and reduced it to smoke and ashes. The aim of the invasion is to rob Poland of its sovereignty and independence, and send its inhabitants into the arms of a Grim Reaper whose scythe is marked national extermination: "On September 1, 1939, Germany invaded Poland. Germany launched the unprovoked attack at dawn, with an advance force consisting of more than 2,000 tanks supported by nearly 900 bombers and over 400 fighter planes. In all, Germany deployed 60 divisions and nearly 1.5 million men in the invasion. From East Prussia and Germany in the north, and Silesia and Slovakia in the south, German units quickly broke through Polish defenses along the border and advanced on Warsaw in a massive encirclement attack." (Invasion Of Poland, Fall 1939, Holocaust Encyclopedia). Ukraine, February 24, 2022. Russia launches an invasion of a free democratic nation, and starts the greatest war in Europe since World War II. Calling the invasion a "special military operation", Russian leader Vladimir Putin is condemned by civilized people throughout the world. He is the carrier of the fever of racism and nationalism which made Hitler mad, and seeks to create a Russian slave empire in the manner of the Third Reich: "Adolf Hitler wanted a Third Reich—a third grand empire. So does Vladimir Putin. He hopes his Russian Federation can recover the lands lost when the Tsarist Empire collapsed in 1917 and the Soviet in 1991. Hitler's Third Reich lasted about seven years from the point where it annexed Austria in 1938 to his suicide in May 1945. So far Putin's forces continue to occupy a sliver of Moldova; two provinces still legally belonging to Georgia; several parts of Ukraine's Donbas; and all of Crimea, which had been transferred in 1954 from Russia to Ukraine by Nikita Khrushchev." (What Putin Could Learn From Hitler by Walter Clemens). America, January 2026. A bell rings out from the arsenal of the free world, sounding the terrifying tones of an eternal law. This is the law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently rotted and decayed from within. In the forest of free nations, the mightiest tree is the United States of America. In January 2026, it commenced a fall into the jungle of outlaw nations when its leader made known his war plans. In this first month after he was inaugurated for a second term, inaugurated as forty seventh president of the United States, Donald Trump stepped into the shadow of a virulent, aggressive nationalism, into a darkness ruled by Satan's emissaries Hitler and Putin, and took his nation into a permanent moral eclipse, destroying its international credibility and reputation for all time to come. In this month, Trump announced that will not respect the right of self determination of a free democratic society called Greenland. January 2026 saw a timeline of high treason authored by Trump. On January 6, Trump ordered the Joint Operations Command to make plans for "a possible invasion of Greenland." On January 9, Trump proclaimed "I don't need international law" and "it may be a choice" for America between invading Greenland and preserving NATO. He proclaimed that treaties with Denmark guaranteeing America an unlimited right to establish military bases in Greenland are insufficient for America, and that an invasion is "psychologically needed for success." He proclaimed that America will "do something" toward the people of Greenland "whether they like it or not". He proclaimed that America will take Greenland "the hard way" if Denmark does not surrender the territory. He proclaimed that the right of Greenlanders to determine their own future does not exist because "the fact that Denmark had a boat land there 500 years ago doesn't mean they own the land." On January 14, Trump proclaimed on TruthSocial: "NATO: Tell Denmark to get them out of here [Greenland], NOW!" On January 17, Trump proclaimed on TruthSocial that will impose tariffs on nations which participate in Operation Arctic Endurance, a Danish led military exercise to resist American aggression in Greenland. He proclaimed that he will impose a ten percent tariff on Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Germany, Britain, the Netherlands and Finland on February 1, and a twenty five percent tariff on these nations on June 1. On January 18, Trump proclaimed that it is good and proper for America to violate the right of self determination of a free democratic society called Greenland and annex it by force of arms. America has the right to annex Greenland, in defiance if the will of its people, because Trump stopped eight wars and did not get a Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts, he strongly supports NATO, and Denmark does not have notarized ownership papers for Greenland. America has the right to act in a lawless manner in order to protect the rule of law from attacks by Russia and China: "Dear Jonas: Considering your Country decided not to give me the Nobel Peace Prize for having stopped 8 Wars PLUS, I no longer feel an obligation to think purely of Peace, although it will always be predominant, but can now think about what is good and proper for the United States of America. Denmark cannot protect that land from Russia or China, and why do they have a 'right of ownership' anyway? There are no written documents, it's only that a boat landed there hundreds of years ago, but we had boats landing there, also. I have done more for NATO than any other person since its founding, and now, NATO should do something for the United States. The World is not secure unless we have Complete and Total Control of Greenland. Thank you! President DJT." Outlaw Nation. Look at America in the twenty first century and see its president transform it into an outlaw nation. See Donald Trump, who has accomplished great things in rolling back a high tide of Marxist revolution submerging the nation in the bacterial waters of gender, race, class, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation politics, violate his oath of office and commit high crimes and misdemeanors by threatening a free society with aggressive war. See Trump threaten to take over Greenland or force its secession in defiance of the will of its people. See Trump threaten the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Greenland in defiance of the will of its people to remain a part of the Kingdom of Denmark and a part of the European Union. See Trump proclaim that he will either make a deal to acquire Greenland or else take the territory by force. See Trump send the chill of fear coursing through Greenlandic men, women and children over his threats of annexation. See a desire for control, a will to power, a plan to act without regard to the will of a free society, a war aim of aggression which civilized people in Greenland, in America and throughout the world have found unAmerican and unfathomable: "The leaders of Denmark and the country's territory of Greenland on Tuesday offered a united front against President Donald Trump's calls for the United States to take over the strategic Arctic island on the eve of critical meetings in Washington on the matter. In perhaps their sharpest pushback to date, Denmark and Greenland's prime ministers underscored that the territory is part of Denmark, and thus covered by the umbrella of the NATO military alliance. A US attempt to take over or force the secession of the massive island would tear apart the transatlantic alliance, which has been a linchpin of post World War II security. But Trump brushed off the concern, telling reporters in Washington, 'That's their problem.' The leaders, Danish Prime Minister Mette Frederiksen and Greenland Prime Minister Jens-Frederik Nielsen, sought to underscore their solidarity as their foreign ministers, Denmark's Lars Løkke Rasmussen and Greenland's Vivian Motzfeldt, prepared for talks at the White House on Wednesday with Vice President JD Vance and Secretary of State Marco Rubio. 'Dear Greenlanders, you should know that we stand together today, we will do so tomorrow, and we will continue to do so', Frederiksen said during a joint press conference in Copenhagen. 'If we have to choose between the United States and Denmark here and now, we choose Denmark. We choose NATO. We choose the Kingdom of Denmark. We choose the EU', said Greenland's Nielsen. Tensions have grown this month as Trump has ramped up calls for a US takeover of the island. He has repeatedly said he's considering a range of options, including military force, to acquire Greenland. Asked by reporters about Nielsen's comments saying Greenland preferred to stay with Denmark, Trump said: 'I disagree with him. I don't know who he is. I don't know anything about him. But, that's going to be a big problem for him.' Trump earlier this week reiterated his argument that the US needs to 'take Greenland', otherwise Russia or China would. He also says he'd rather 'make a deal' for the territory, 'but one way or the other, we're going to have Greenland.' Naaja Nathanielsen, Greenland's minister for business and mineral resources, said it's 'unfathomable' that the United States is discussing taking over a NATO ally and urged the Trump administration to listen to voices from the Arctic island's people. Nathanielsen added that people in Greenland are 'very, very worried' over the US administration's desire for control of Greenland. 'People are not sleeping, children are afraid, and it just fills everything these days. And we can't really understand it', Nathanielsen said at a meeting with lawmakers in Britain's Parliament. Nathanielsen said Greenlanders understand the need for increased monitoring in the Arctic amid growing geopolitical insecurity. But she said 'it is just unfathomable to understand' that Greenland could be facing the prospect of being sold or annexed. A bipartisan US congressional delegation is headed to Copenhagen for meetings on Friday and Saturday in an attempt to show unity between the United States and Denmark. Nathanielsen said she thinks the people of Greenland should have a say in their own future. 'My deepest dream or hope is that the people of Greenland will get a say no matter what', she said. 'For others this might be a piece of land, but for us it's home.' " (Denmark, Greenland Leaders Stand United Against Trump's Greenland Takeover Call Ahead Of Key Meeting by Emma Burrows, Geir Moulson and Aamer Madhani). Outlaw Nation. In the twenty first century, America's president is channeling the spirits of dark times. He is channeling the communist and fascist invaders of free nations. Impelled by an antiliberal creed of nationalism at odds with his own great achievements in rolling back the enemies of freedom in America, he is threatening to seize Greenland by force. He is threatening to violate Greenland's right of self determination. This right applies to free societies and to free societies alone, for governments which violate the rights of their own citizens have no rights of any kind. There is no such thing as a right to violate human rights. Nations which are not free are slave pens run by outlaw governments and have no right to exist and thus have no right of self determination. The right of national self determination is not a shield for mass murder and not a blank check for the armies of evil, but has to be earned by good government conduct. Greenland is a free democratic society which has earned the right of self determination. America in the wake of Donald Trump's threats to seize it by force has evicted itself from the ranks of civilized nations. In the twenty first century, a figure of tragedy named Donald Trump, a figure who has rolled back the excresences of a cancer called Marxist identity politics but has threatened to invade a free democratic society, has disgraced his nation's founding documents and ideals and made the nation unrecognizable.

ONLINE PUBLICATION: UNAMERICAN THINKER

A Democrat by birth, Thomas became more conservative in adulthood as reality taught him that dreams of perfecting human society always run smack into human nature. (Crunchbase). Thus is described Thomas Lifson, editor, publisher and cofounder of the online publication American Thinker. In March 2003 in Western America, in the San Francisco Bay Area, in the city of El Cerrito, California, Lifson, along with his colleagues Ed Lasky and Richard Baehr, founded an online publication devoted to news and commentary, a publication whose name is a brazen dissimulation of its terrifying reality. For the publication founded by Lifson, Lassky and Baehr is anything but American in the views it peddles, and is a witches' brew of antiEnlightenment doctrines running the Devil's gamut from the Christian Right to fascism and national socialism. Its war on American values begins with the above online statement of its cofounder's politics. In common with Christian Rightists the world over, Lifson proclaims that a socialist slave society, depriving individuals of every last trace of freedom, occupies the moral high ground and expresses the shining ideal of human moral perfection. He proclaims that the problem with socialism resides not in its theory but only in its practice. In its theory it is fine, noble and the product of good intentions and not criminal intentions, and it morally fails only in attempts to put it into practice. It is an evil doctrine, not because the individual is the primary reality and the self has rights, and the individual has a natural, inalienable right to live and work for himself, but because human nature is not in fact good enough to love slavery. It is an evil doctrine, not because selfishness is morally proper, but because individuals are not in fact good enough to live selflessly and to enslave themselves to a god called the Collective. Socialism is a system which is moral but not practical, while capitalism is a system which is practical but not moral. In a morally perfect society inhabited by morally perfect people, socialism would be the ruling system and would establish a shining utopia on earth. Lifson's belief in the moral superiority of socialism to capitalism is the starting bell from on high for a race of unAmerican thinkers proselytizing across the pages of the publication, calumniating classic American liberal democracy, Enlightenment based values and the system of constitutional rights. UnAmerican Thinker. Listen to another voice from on high promote unAmerican doctrines. Listen to editor Andrea Widburg promote fascism and national socialism. Listen to her proclaim that racial and ethnic rights are the arbiters of all morality. Nations have claims to land, not because they have free democratic institutions, but because the ancestors of their citizens lived there for thousands of years, because their citizens have ties to the land and are indigenous. Nations have claims to land, not because their citizens are good, but because they possess the right race and ethnicity. Nations have claims to land in accordance with history and not morality. The West should support Israel, not because it is a liberal democratic, Enlightenment based nation, and is the only such nation in the Middle East, but because, accordiing to the Mernaptah Stele, Jews have been there for 3400 years and according to the Bible, for over 4000 years. Denmark's claim to sovereignty over Greenland is weaker than Israel's claim to sovereingty because Danes have not been in Greenland as long as Jews have been in Israel. The existence or nonexistence of free democratic institutions means nothing, and race and ethnicity mean eveything, in the adjudication of land claims, in the new neoThird Reich order called America: "Leftist caterwauling, whether the domestic left or various European countries, over Donald Trump's efforts to gain control over Greenland in place of Denmark, is reaching a fever pitch. It's stupid because Russia and China are both making plays for Greenland, which will give them a dangerous military launching pad and control over the Northern Hemisphere's shipping. It's also disgustingly hypocritical, which is the point of this post, because the same people have rejected the Jews' claim over the land of Israel—a much better claim than the Danes have over Greenland. Here's some history: The Jews have been a consistent presence in the Land of Israel for at least 3,200 years, according to the Mernaptah Stele, and as many as 4,000 years, according to the Biblical narrative itself. Since that time, many other tribes and nations have asserted colonial control over the land—the Canaanites, Philistines, Egyptians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Persians, Hellenists, Romans, Byzantines, the Rashiduns, Umayyads, Abbasids, Crusaders, Mamluks, and Ottomans—but all are gone now, just ancient names in dusty history books. While those tribes and nations are forgotten, the Jews remained. Throughout those thousands of years, they've been a continuous presence in the land. They were also the last free standing nation, which ended with the Roman Conquest in 132 A.D. In the years between that conquest and the rebirth of Israel in 1948, the land was just tossed around as a colony—Romans, Byzantines, Muslims, Christians, and Muslims again. Jews were the last indigenous nation before colonization, and they are the returned nation of the land's indigenous people. And yet, the West's leftists, whether in America or abroad, contend that Jews have no claim to the land. Instead, they would give the land to a people with no historical ties to the land. Instead, those people the leftists support floated into it beginning in the 19th century, the flotsam and jetsam of the Ottoman Empire, itself long gone. And here's some more history: The Norse settled in Greenland around 985 A.D. By the 1400s, they were gone. Like the Canaanites, Philistines, Egyptians, Persians, Umayyads, Mamluks, and Ottomans, they were an erased people in the backwater of history. Their ties to the land were temporary and, after a few hundred years, permanently broken. The people who began living on Greenland around 1,200 A.D., and who have been there ever since are the Kalaallit (Greenland Inuits). Their ties to the land aren't as old as the Jews' ties to Israel, but an 800+ year run is a pretty good claim to the land. In 1721, though, the Kalaallit got colonized. A Danish-Norwegian missionary named Hans Egede arrived and announced that, because the Norse had been there for a few centuries, the land belonged to Denmark-Norway (then one country)—to the left, at home and abroad, Denmark has a claim to the land that cannot be challenged. They seem to believe that Denmark is the logical descendant of those Norse settlers (never mind the Norse abandonment), and that gives it rights that can never be challenged. despite the Norse having completely abandoned the land 300 years earlier. When Denmark and Norway split in 1814, Denmark got Greenland as part of the divorce. You know what I call that? Colonization by an occupier with the most limited claim to the land, land stolen from the indigenous people. Eventually, in 1953, the Kalaallit finally obtained Danish citizenship, and in 1979, they gained self government over domestic affairs. They're slowly moving to independence. To the left, at home and abroad, Denmark has a claim to the land that cannot be challenged. They seem to believe that Denmark is the logical descendant of those Norse settlers (never mind the Norse abandonment), and that gives it rights that can never be challenged. What's so disgusting about this position, aside from the historical ignorance, is that, if these leftists thought it through, they'd realize that the same argument applies with overwhelming force to the Jews' claim to Israel.

After all, today's Jews are the logical descendants of the Jews of antiquity—without any hint, ever, of the Norse's 300 year long abandonment. Using leftist reasoning vis-a-vis Denmark, that should give the Jews land rights that can never be challenged. (On the flip side, of course, considering the leftists usually side with indigenous people over colonizers, that too gives Israel absolute rights to the land, because Jews are the last indigenous people). " (The Hypocrisy Of Those Leftists At Home And Abroad Defending Danish Sovereignty Over Greenland by Andrea Widburg). UnAmerican Thinker. Listen to Harold Warner, popular writer for the publication, promote fascism in the matter of Greenland. Listen to him proclaim that America, by virtue of its national greatness and power, has the right to lease or purchase Greenland in defiance of the will of its people. Donald Trump's threat to invade Greenland, a free democratic society possessing the right of self determination guaranteed by Denmark, is wrong, not because it is criminal but only because it is unworkable and would give America bad press, damaging its reputation among civilized people. Trump's threat to impose tariffs on European nations opposed to the invasion of Greenland is wrong, not because it is criminal but only because it would cost the Republican Party independent voters, and jeopardize its control over the House of Representatives: "President Trump is correct to want to exercise control over Greenland, but his methodology is problematic. The present situation is unworkable since we are forced to spend money and risk our personnel with little benefit to us during the immediate period. Ownership is not the only solution to this conundrum. There are several possible methods to fulfill the requirements that Trump seeks. One proposal would be modeled after the arrangement Great Britain had with China for Hong Kong, in which the former had a 99 year lease for the territory. There are many variations on this theme. Mineral resources secured could be used to pay the lease. The lease could have an option for renewal, and there could be negotiations about the renewal. Military bases could be included in the lease arrangement with the choice for their use in a protective missile dome battery. A second option would include a purchase of a portion of the largest geological island in the hemisphere. Rather than gaining the entire landmass, significant areas might be more reasonable. The population is not interested in USA ownership, so this would be unpopular. Further, the citizenry is used to social services that are not part of the American practice. So the population of Greenland would remain independent of the USA, but the vast territory would be ours. The threatened tariffs against several European countries is damaging Trump's position with independent voters. It is essential for the Trump agenda to maintain Republican control of the Congress. Threatened warfare is too bellicose and can be posed as dictatorial. Hopefully, some simple solution can be reached before the press plays this into a failure." HOLLYWOOD SUBVERSION

Now, dearest husband, come, step from your chariot./But do not set to earth, my lord, the conquering foot/That trod down Troy. Servants, do as you have been commanded;/Make haste, cover his way with a red carpet,/Spread silk before your master's feet; Justice herself/Shall lead him to a home he never hoped to see. (Agamemnon by Aeschylus). The red carpet. Symbol of glamor, power, prestige and celebrity status. Since the founding of Hollywood and the birth of the American film industry, the red carpet has graced its gala events, and the Hollywood red carpet has become a global icon used in product placements and publicity backdrops the world over. But the color red has acquired another significance in Hollywood, which has sent the chill of fear coursing through patriotic Americans and civilized people in every nation on earth. It has become a symbol of a campaign of subversion of free institutions and ideals by the producers, directors and screenwriters of America's film industry, and become a terrifying illustration of the eternal law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently decayed and rotted within. Since its inception, the mightiest tree in the global entertainment industry has been falling into a fever swamp of far left propaganda, and in the twenty first century it has crashed and become a bankrupt shadow of its original self. Its decline and fall has been a mirror and representation of the decline and fall of the mightiest tree in the forest of free nations. In the twenty first century, Hollywood has morally crashed because the United States of America has morally crashed, and the crash of America is but an echo of the crash of the West itself. Nicknamed Tinseltown, the Dream Factory and La La Land, Hollywood, the headquarters of Universal Pictures, Paramount Pictures, Warner Brothers, Walt Disney Studios and Sony Pictures, and a synonym for the American film industry, has been peddling alien ideologies rejecting freedom for over a century to the standing ovations of the public, and has been a showcase, in the glow of the silver screen, for the moral decline and fall of the nation, to the horror of the vanishing community of Americans still dedicated to the nation's founding ideals. Look at the Hollywood of yesteryear and the Hollywood of today and see a one hundred year crescendo reach its loudest point in the twenty first century, shattering cinemas with the earsplitting decibels of Marxist calls to burn up the documents and institutions of freedom. Hollywood Subversion. Look at Hollywood and see the nation's film industry promote communism as a noble way of life. See it tell audiences that life under communism is good, and that people are free and happy under communism. See it sing a song of Russia, communism and universal enslavement. See it submerge cinemas in communist orchestras, anthems, flags, mobs and hammer and sickles. See it promote communism as a passionate love story. See it promote communism as devoid of secret police and political persecution. See it promote communism as clean, safe, idyllic, prosperous and luxurious, graced by marble statues and subways symbolizing human liberation. See it promote communism as devoid of poverty, starvation, disease, want and fear: "I use the term to mean that communist propaganda is anything which gives a good impression of communism as a way of life. Anything that sells people the idea that life in Russia is good and that people are free and happy would be communist propaganda. Am I not correct? I mean, would that be a fair statement to make--that that would be communist propaganda? Now, here is what the picture Song of Russia contains. It starts with an American conductor, played by Robert Taylor, giving a concert in America for Russian war relief. He starts playing the American national anthem and the national anthem dissolves into a Russian mob, with the sickle and hammer on a red flag very prominent above their heads. I am sorry, but that made me sick. That is something which I do not see how native Americans permit, and I am only a naturalized American. That was a terrible touch of propaganda. As a writer, I can tell you just exactly what it suggests to the people. It suggests literally and technically that it is quite all right for the American national anthem to dissolve into the Soviet. The term here is more than just technical. It really was symbolically intended, and it worked out that way. The anthem continues, played by a Soviet band. That is the beginning of the picture. Now we go to the pleasant love story. Mr Taylor is an American who came there apparently voluntarily to conduct concerts for the Soviets. He meets a little Russian girl from a village who comes to him and begs him to go to her village to direct concerts there. There are no GPU agents and nobody stops her. She just comes to Moscow and meets him. He falls for her and decides he will go, because he is falling in love. He asks her to show him Moscow. She says she has never seen it. He says, 'I will show it to YOU.' They see it together. The picture then goes into a scene of Moscow, supposedly. I don't know where the studio got its shots, but I have never seen anything like it in Russia. First you see Moscow buildings--big, prosperous looking, clean buildings, with something like swans or sailboats in the foreground. Then you see a Moscow restaurant that just never existed there. In my time, when I was in Russia, there was only one such restaurant, which was nowhere as luxurious as that and no one could enter it except commissars and profiteers. Certainly a girl from a village, who in the first place would never have been allowed to come voluntarily, without permission, to Moscow, could not afford to enter it, even if she worked ten years. However, there is a Russian restaurant with a menu such as never existed in Russia at all and which I doubt even existed before the revolution. From this restaurant they go on to this tour of Moscow. The streets are clean and prosperous looking. There are no food lines anywhere. You see shots of the marble subway--the famous Russian subway out of which they make such propaganda capital. There is a marble statue of Stalin thrown in. There is a park where you see happy little children in white blouses running around. I don't know whose children they are, but they are really happy kiddies. They are not homeless children in rags, such as I have seen in Russia. Then you see an excursion boat, on which the Russian people are smiling, sitting around very cheerfully, dressed in some sort of satin blouses such as they only wear in Russian restaurants here. Then they attend a luxurious dance. I don't know where they got the idea of the clothes and the settings that they used at the ball. I have never seen anybody wearing such clothes and dancing to such exotic music when I was there. Of course, it didn't say whose ballroom it is or how they get there. But there they are-- free and dancing very happily. I understand from correspondents who have left Russia and been there later than I was and from people who escaped from there later than I did that the time I saw it, which was in 1926, was the best time since the Russian revolution. At that time conditions were a little better than they have become since. In my time we were a bunch of ragged, starved, dirty, miserable people who had only two thoughts in our mind. That was our complete terror--afraid to look at one another, afraid to say anything for fear of who is listening and would report us--and where to get the next meal. You have no idea what it means to live in a country where nobody has any concern except food, where all the conversation is about food because everybody is so hungry that that is all they can think about and that is all they can afford to do. They have no idea of politics. They have no idea of any pleasant romances or love-nothing but food and fear. That is what I saw up to 1926. That is not what the picture shows." (Ayn Rand's testimony before the House of Representatives Committee on Un American Activities, October 20, 1947). Hollywood Subversion. Look at Hollywood and see it tell audiences that morality consists in being responsible for the welfare of others and advancing the good of society. See it tell audiences that people should abandon their wishes and dreams, accomplish nothing for themselves, and live and work for the sake of a god called the Collective. See it tell audiences that their lives do not belong to themselves but belong to the neighbors next door and to the people at the other end of the world, and that the path to human perfection is blazed by trhe fires of self immolation and universal enslavement: "We libertarians believe people try harder and do best when individuals are free to pursue their own dreams. In my new video, I interview libertarian Timothy Sandefur, author of the new book, You Don't Own Me. He says, 'The title comes from the famous song by Leslie Gore, saying, I'm in charge of my own desires, dreams. I'm responsible for my own self.' 'That's kind of obvious', I point out. 'It should be', he replies. 'Unfortunately, a lot of people ignore this and say, you're responsible for other people, or other people must be responsible for you' He gives examples from Hollywood. 'The original Wizard Of Oz movie is this optimistic, joyful film about somebody who always had the strength within her to accomplish her dreams.' But the recent Wizard of Oz, called Wicked, focuses on the Wicked Witch, who is a victim because she's green. Her dream isn't to do anything; it's for others to accept her. 'Very different from a film in which the character wants to accomplish something', says Sandefur. She rejects the wizard's offer of a seat by his side, instead asking him to help society. Sandefur says the message is, 'We should not pursue our own dreams. Instead, curtail our own behavior for the benefit of society.' Likewise, in the latest Wonder Woman sequel, the villain grants individuals' wishes, but that threatens the world. So Wonder Woman tells everyone to give up their wishes. That saves the day. As Sandefur puts it: 'We should not want things, not desire or dream things, and that will save the world.' " (Hollywood vs. Individualism by John Stossel). Hollywood Subversion. It is acclaimed as a cinematic masterpiece and the greatest film ever made. Charting the rise and fall of newspaper magnate Charles Foster Kane, it tells audiences that financial success makes people lose their humanity, and that capitalism is a regime of brute acquisition making people miserable. Acclaimed as a "social document", Orson Welles's Citizen Kane is classic Hollywood. Representative of Hollywood's offerings from the beginning to the present day, it is a film one hundred and twenty minutes long, encapsulating one hundred years of Hollywood treason to the world of freedom.

RED GROUPS TERRORIZE AMERICA

On Niederkirchner Street in Berlin, Germany is a museum. It stands on the site of the organs of terror of the Third Reich. It stands where the SS Reich Security Main Office, the Sicherheitspolizei, the Sicherheitsdienst, the Einsatzrgruppen and the Gestapo were located and directed mass murder across Germany and Europe. Its purpose is to document and memorialize their crimes and serve as a permanent reminder of the ever present menace totalitarian movements pose to the safety and security of mankind. Opened on May 6, 2010 on the occasion of the sixty fifth anniversary of Germany's surrender and the end of World War II, the Topography of Terrors has acquired additional locations throughout the world. Each location provides a map of terror listing the Marxist armies of antiEnlightenment wearing redshirts, blackshirts and brownshirts, and marching under the banners of the hammer and sickle, the swastika, radical environmentalism, global Islam, and an identitarian rainbow whose colors are marked gender, race, class, culture, ethnicity and sexual orientation. Each location provides a warning to civilized people of the ever present menace Marxism and its offshoots and its allies pose to the safety and security of mankind. In a terrifying illustration of the eternal law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently rotted and decayed, the largest location of the Topography of Terrors is in the arsenal of the free world. In the twenty first century, in the United States of America, a Topography of Terrors has spread across the map and is bringing down the nation. This map has six points, standing for six main Marxist or Muslim organizations supported by the masses, six populist points of darkness seeking to turn back the clock on two hundred and fifty years of Enlightenment freedom. Look at them and see a morally rotting and decaying America disgrace its land and documents as it mirrors the decline and fall of the West. American Civil Liberties Union. Look at the American Civil Liberties Union proclaim that the right of free speech does protect speech critical of groups exalted by Marxist gender, race, class, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation politics. The right to enjoy due process of law, the right to receive a fair trial, the right to receive representation of counsel, the right to confront the witnesses against one, the right to present exculpatory evidence, the right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty by evidence establishing guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, and the right to be protected from conviction based in whole or in part on the word of an accuser or series of accusers, does not apply to males accused by women of sexual assault: "The American Civil Liberties Union used to be a great institution. Founded in January 1920, the ACLU sought to become, in its own words, 'the nation’s premier defender of the rights enshrined in the US Constitution.' Over the decades, the organization fought for civil liberties even when no one else would. Over its 100 year history, the ACLU has—to its credit—vexed both sides of the political aisle because it refused to compromise the principles of its civil libertarianism. Sadly, that is no longer the case. In recent years, the group has retreated from its principles when they clash with trendy left wing priorities. By now, the ACLU’s retreat from the First Amendment is well documented. It will not defend the First Amendment rights of prolife pregnancy centers or small religious businesses. It no longer defends religious freedom, although it once did. And in a leaked internal memo, the ACLU takes the position that free speech denigrating 'marginalized groups' should not be defended. Sadder yet, however, is the ACLU’s recent abandonment of the right to due process. For a group founded to help the powerless, this is a repudiation of its founding ideals.Consider the new Title IX rules designed to restore the due process rights of those accused of sexual harassment on college campuses. The rules are meant to restore protections that were erased under the Obama regime. Under the old rules (which remain in effect until August), colleges may expel students based on

nothing more than the word of their accuser or even the word of a third party who witnessed nothing. The accused often is denied the right to cross examine, the right to counsel, the right to see the evidence against him or her, and the right to present exculpatory evidence." (The ACLU Loses Its Way by GianCarlo Canaparo). Sixteen Thirty Fund. Look at the Sixteen Thirty Fund and see it fund communism in the name of achieving progressive social change. See it fund communism in the name of achieving economic equity. See it fund communism in the name of providing affordable health care. See it fund communism in the name of strengthening democracy, increasing voter access and protecting the right to vote. See it fund communism in the name of reversing the catastrophic effects of man made climate change. See it fund policies discriminating on the basis of race and giving preferential treatment to blacks in the name of achieving racial equity, social responsibility, and establishing a fair, just America: "The Sixteen Thirty Fund is an independent 501 organization that uses a fiscal sponsorship model to maximize our impact and create lasting change. Sixteen Thirty Fund and the projects we support are fighting for economic equity, affordable health care, climate solutions, racial justice, voter access, and other essential social change goals. From advancing equity and racial justice, to promoting access to affordable health care, to confronting climate change, to strengthening our democracy, we are proud to support leaders and causes that share our progressive values and aspirations for a fair, just America. 'As progressives, we have a responsibility to mobilize in the face of societal challenges and provide new investments and initiatives to advocate for what we believe in—from addressing climate change, to protecting voting rights and access to health care, to promoting equity and social justice. Our democracy depends on people making their voices heard, and we believe that advocacy is the backbone of our democracy.' Amy Kurtz, President, Sixteen Thirty Fund." (Sixteen Thirty Fund, website). The Center for American Progress. Look at the Center for American Progress and see communist ideas paraded as progressive ideas. See communism promoted in the name of protecting the planet. See communism promoted in the name of achieving shared global prosperity. See communism promoted in the name of achieving economic mobility. See communism promoted as the most effective form of government. See the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual subordinated to a mystical god called the Common Good. See the promotion of policies discriminating on the basis of race and sex in the name of achieving diversity: "The Center for American Progress is an independent, nonpartisan policy institute that is dedicated to improving the lives of all Americans through bold, progressive ideas, as well as strong leadership and concerted action. Our aim is not just to change the conversation, but to change the country. As progressives, we believe America should be a land of boundless opportunity, where people can climb the ladder of economic mobility. We believe we owe it to future generations to protect the planet and promote peace and shared global prosperity. And we believe an effective government can earn the trust of the American people, champion the common good over narrow self interest, and harness the strength of our diversity." (Center for American Progress, website). Council on American-Islamic Relations. Look at the the Council on American-Islamic Relations and see a council peddle religious hate and extremism. See a sword of the Prophet spill blood across the world. See international crime promoted in the name of international Islam. See the shroud of Sharia bury civilization in a pall of terror and fear: "Texas Governor Greg Abbott designated the Muslim Brotherhood and the Council on American-Islamic Relations as foreign terrorist organizations and transnational criminal organizations on Tuesday. The designation will allow for heightened enforcement actions against the organization and its affiliates by authorities within the Lone Star State. In a Tuesday morning press release issued at the state capitol, Abbott offered the following comments regarding the designation saying, 'The Muslim Brotherhood and CAIR have long made their goals clear: to forcibly impose Sharia law and establish Islam's 'mastership of the world. The actions taken by the Muslim Brotherhood and CAIR to support terrorism across the globe and subvert our laws through violence, intimidation, and harassment are unacceptable.' The designation will prohibit both organizations and their affiliates from purchasing or acquiring land in Texas. Abbott emphasized the consequences of the designation adding, 'These radical extremists are not welcome in our state and are now prohibited from acquiring any real property interest in Texas.' " (Abbott Designates Muslim Brotherhood, CAIR As Terrorist, Criminal Organizations—Bans Land Ownership In Texas by Randy Clark). Southern Poverty Law Center. Look at the Southern Poverty Law Center and see it condemn the conservative voices of constitutional rights and limited government as neonazis and white supremacists. See it rake in millions of dollars from communist John Q Public and amass a war chest scaling peaks of wealth and power in its fight against America: "The Southern Poverty Law Center is perhaps most notorious for its 'hate map', which not only neglects to track extremist groups on the left, but also lumps mainstream conservative and religious organizations right alongside some of the most reprehensible neonazis and white supremacists in the country. For this, it has been regularly and rightly criticized. The controversial activist group has also become phenomenally wealthy, with an endowment rivaling prominent universities and annual revenues exceeding some of the most well known charities in the country." (The Southern Poverty Law Center Is Biased—And Extraordinarily Wealthy by Robert Stilson). American Federation of Government Employees. Look at the American Federation of Government Employees and see it fight Donald Trump's initiative to maximize government productivity and eliminate excess government regulations and spending. See it proclaim that civil servants have no First Amendment right of free speech or right of free association, and must support through compulsory union dues the political positions of the American Federation of Government Employees and must join its ranks: "Government unions are fighting President Donald Trump tooth and nail. The American Federation of Government Employees alone has filed numerous lawsuits to block the president from reforming the federal workforce and rolling back collective bargaining at government agencies. Unions claim that the president's actions hurt workers, the economy, and even the country as a whole. But this union fear mongering should be taken with a grain of salt. The last time government unions opposed sweeping reforms, they were dead wrong. Government unions faced another momentous reform seven years ago when the Supreme Court ruled in Janus vs AFSCME. The court held that public sector workers have a First Amendment right to withdraw completely from union membership and dues. In essence, the court created a nationwide right to work law for all public sector workers, including teachers, police officers, firefighters, and all other federal, state, and local government workers. No longer would they have to join or pay a union to keep their job. Government unions hated this ruling, of course." (When Fighting Trump, Take Union Claims With A Grain Of Salt by Jarrett Skorup). America Today. America's geography presents a pageant of diversity. Beautiful, dramatic and eye catching, it encompasses the Western Mountains and the Great Plains, the Appalachians and Atlantic Plain, Alaska's tundra and Hawaii's volcanoes, a titanic landmass bounded by the Atlantic, Pacific and Arctic Oceans. In the twenty first century, before the relentless, popular advance of Marxist identity politics, this land called America has become a topography of terror.

RED DOCTORS GO ON KILLING SPREE

Professor Philipp Lenard is known to fame in two capacities, as a great experimenter whose work on phosphorescence and electronics is fundamental for modern physics, and as a politician and stalwart fighter against the Jewish evil, of whom Herr Rosenberg has said: 'As a thinker, professor Lenard has taught that all knowledge is not the same, but that the souls of alien races produce bodies of knowledge of a quite different spiritual content'. The present book, which is the first of a series designed to present the elements of physics to young students, shows him likewise in two capacities, as a profound political thinker and patriot on one hand, and as a physicist on the other. (Review of Deutsche Physik by Philipp Lenard, in Nature, Volume 139, pages 983–984, 1937). The relativization of truth and the politicization of science commenced its dark career in the doctrines of Karl Marx. Rejecting the Enlightenment view that truth is universal and objective in character, Marxism proclaims that truth varies with economic classes, that there is a bourgeois truth and a proletarian truth, a bourgeois logic and proletarian logic, and all criticisms of Marxism are the products of bourgeois thinking and must be dismissed out of hand. From this original Marxist relativism came a doctrine of neoMarxist relativism in the early twentieth century called national socialism. Invented by Adolf Hitler, it substituted race for class as the creator of truth and reality, and proclaimed that truth varies with races, that there is an Aryan truth and a Jewish truth, an Aryan logic and a Jewish logic, and all criticisms of national socialism are the products of Jewish thinking and must be dismissed out of hand. The radioactive fallout produced by the Marxist mushroom bomb of relativity would continue to rain down poison on logic and the sciences over the decades, and in the 1960s, another neoMarxist doctrine emerged. This proclaimed that truth is relative to gender, race, class, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation, and all criticisms of this multitribe relativization of truth are the products of white, male, Western, capitalist, heterosexual, nontransgender thinking and must be dismissed out of hand. In the twenty first century, this multitribe, neoMarxist monster has entered medical schools and smashed up classrooms, clinics, hospitals and laboratories, and transformed the science which for thousands of years has sought to diagnose, prevent and treat disease into a weapon of death and destruction in the hands of ruthless ideologues. Medicine Today. Look at medicine today and see an attack on truth and science, rendering it terrifying and unrecognizable. The neoMarxist ideologues in control of medicine today proclaim that the notion of universal, objective truth is an oppressive, racist, Western colonial legacy. Progressive medicine is grounded in identity politics and does not treat white bodies. The notion of empirical medicine is oppressive to people of color. Progressive medicine is black racist medicine. Progressive medicine rejects the traditional concern for data and evidence and is a weapon of social advocacy and cultural revolution. Progressive medicine is politicized medicine which views reality through tribal filters and ideological categories. Progressive medicine does not see sick people as flesh and blood individuals but as members of groups and withholds treatment to members of the wrong groups. Progressive medicine deemphasizes scientific rigor, practice and training in favor of Marxist politics and social reform. Progressive medicine deemphasizes biological knowledge in favor of political knowledge. Progressive medicine deemphasizes the training of competent clinicians in favor of the training of competent activists. The notion of empirical medicine is a weapon of white Western empires. The Enlightenment rejection of religion in favor of reason, and emphasis on science in place of insanity, has produced a regime of colonial surveillance and erasure of indigenous healing practices. Progressive medicine is Marxist medicine and treats blacks, lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transgenders and queers and treats nobody else. Progressive medicine is politics centered and not patient centered. A progressive medical school assigns papers, projects, ethnographic research studies and weekly discussions promoting Marxist identity politics and denigrating Enlightenment values. Progressive medicine is postcolonial, postempirical, postrational, postscientific, Marxist political medicine. Progressive medical schools deemphasize the understanding of disease and the delivery of quality health care in favor of training effective political proselytizers. A progressive medical school features lectures on race, revolution, black supremacy and the rejection of the Enlightennent. A progressive medical establishment is an association of partisan political doctors and surgeons dedicated to the destruction of the capitalist system. Progressive medicine rejects the two thousand year old Hippocratic Oath to heal patients and do no harm to them in favor of an oath to let white, male, successful, heterosexual and cisgender males die. A progressive medical school deemphasizes public health education in favor of public political and ideological education. Progressive medicine seeks to achieve social goals and black reparations in place of traditional medical goals of healing the sick. A progressive medical school deemphasizes scientific values, foundations and evidence based training in favor of social analysis and political and ideological indocrination, and teaches students that only members of political correct tribes have a right to exist: "Physicians are raising concerns over new course offerings at the University of Maryland that incorporate identity politics into various public health and medical programs at the public institution. Decolonizing Medicine: Steps to Actionable Change is a one credit undergraduate public health course, first taught in the spring of 2025 and offered again this semester. Designed for students studying medicine, public health or health policy, it covers how 'colonial legacies' impact 'global health systems' and the 'concept of the white body' as the standard in medical training, according to the university registrar's catalog. The 'student facilitated discussion based' course also is open for registration for the current spring semester as a two credit elective. However, outside medical educators and field experts raised concerns about the impact of these identity politics based courses. The College Fix spoke recently with Dr Jane Orient, executive director at the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons. 'The title of the course as well as the description reflects the ideological view of oppressors (white colonialists) versus the oppressed (people of color), a fundamental antiwhite racist view', Orient said. 'The statement that modern medicine has been shaped by colonialism makes no sense to me. Modern medicine was shaped by scientific advances.' Orient also expressed her concerns over the politicization of medical education and deviating from high standards of empirical data and hard science. 'The purpose of medicine, according to the late Donald Seldin, is to relieve pain, reduce disability, and postpone death. It is not about social reform', Orient said to The Fix. 'Framing medicine through Marxist concepts of oppression is destructive of the art and science of medicine', Orient added. 'Doctors are not called to judge their patients' worth or to engage in cultural revolution.' Dr Kurt Miceli, medical director at Do No Harm, a nonprofit that works against the politicization of medicine, raised similar concerns. 'Framing medicine primarily through an identity based lens can lead future doctors to see patients through ideological categories rather than as individuals with specific clinical needs', Miceli told The Fix in a recent interview. He added that ideological framing is counterproductive in medical and public health education, because it removes the focus from the 'rigorous biological knowledge' and 'scientific depth and clinical practice time students need to become safe, competent clinicians.' These ideologies do not 'advance students' ability to understand disease or deliver good quality care' but rather bring 'division into the clinical setting', he said. According to the course, assignments include weekly discussion posts, papers, projects, and an ethnographic research study that aligns with 'decolonizing' modern medicine. Some of the lecture topics of the course include: medicine as 'a tool of empire' and 'colonial surveillance', the 'colonial erasure of indigenous healing practices', and 'racialized' and 'LGBTQ+ healthcare in postcolonial contexts.' While not a core program requirement, the course is offered along with other public health and medicine electives, such as HLTH424 Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual & Transgender Health. Dr Dina Borzekowski, the class advisor, referred The Fix to Anyi Tahi when contacted for comment. Tahi, a third year student and undergraduate assistant in the nutritional science department, did not respond. Meanwhile, Dr Orient with the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons told The Fix that the ideological division of identity politics in public health education undermines the essential equality of patient centered medical care. 'The Hippocratic ethic holds that doctors should do their best for each patient and not harm any of them', Orient said. 'Identity politics implies that some are to get less than your best to achieve some sort of social goal or to right hypothetical past harms.' Dr Miceli with Do Not Harm told The Fix that the ideological education risks reducing clinical rigor, adding that 'a focus on social critique to the point of political indoctrination bears a significant cost, particularly when it becomes a vehicle for a political agenda.' 'It must never be allowed to overshadow or replace the scientific foundation clinicians rely on to deliver effective patient care in an objective, compassionate manner', Miceli said. " ('Decolonizing Medicine' Class At UMD Prompts Concerns About Politicizing Health Care by Michael Haack). Medicine Today. The radioactive death clouds produced by relativism can ultimately all be traced to the doctrines of the most influential and discussed philosopher in modern times. If Marx is the father of polylogism and the politicization of science, then Immanuel Kant, is the grandfather. Setting forth his terrifying mission, "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith", Kant proclaimed that truth and science are the products of human perception and reason and have no basis in reality, and the world of physical objects is a collective delusion of all mankind. Proclaiming that truth and science are relative to the human race, Kant set the stage for Marx and the bloodshed which followed the imposition of his creed in the twentieth century. In the Communist Bloc, the doctrine of proletarian science brought the denial of genetics on the grounds that fixed entities called genes are incompatible with the whirling flux of dialectical materialism, in which nothing is as it is and every becomes. It brought the antigenetic pseudoscience of Trofim Lysenko. Established as a state religion in Stalinist Russia and Maoist China, Lysenkoism destroyed agriculture in these nations and led to the greatest mass famines in history, killing a total of one hundred million people. Hitler's doctrine of Aryan Physics and Jewish Physics led to a massive brain drain in Germany under the Third Reich. In the twenty first century, neoMarxism has infected the theory and practice of medicine and is killing millions.

BARACK OBAMA DEFIES DEMOCRACY

He is tall, thin and pale, with a domed forehead, sunken eyes, a skull like face, a cadaverous appearance, and a reptilian manner of moving. He is a criminal mastermind, a spider at the center of a vast web, directing all manner of evil to undermine law and order. Created by Arthur Conan Doyle, Professor James Moriarty is the Napoleon of Crime, the organizer of an international criminal underworld, and the archenemy of the world's greatest detective, Sherlock Holmes. This paragon of evil has thousands of lives and continually appears whenever societies abandon reason and morality and descend into the savagery of the jungle. He appears during the final stages of civilization when its leading figures reject constitutions, covenants, traditions, institutions, the rule of law and the documents of human liberty, and don the cold, dark jackets of high treason. In the twenty first century, in a nation exalted as the arsenal of the free world, he has appeared, and illustrated in terrifying detail the eternal law that the mightiest tree in the forest will fall if sufficiently rotted and decayed. In the twenty first century, in the United States of America, Professor James Moriarty has appeared in a venue civilized people have found unimaginable and inconceivable. In the twenty first century, the mightiest tree in the forest of free nations has crashed, pushed by the occupant of the highest office in the nation, creating a boom heard around the world, a boom echoing across the annals of infamy, shattering the capital cities of the West, and sending the chill of fear coursing through the hearts of patriotic Americans. In the twenty first century, in the venue of the office of the president of the United States, in the person of Barack Obama, Professor James Moriarty has appeared and thrown America to its death down the waterfalls of cultural degeneracy. Look at him use his office to attempt to rig the 2016 presidential election, and after the victory of Donald Trump, to attempt to delegitimize Trump. Barack Obama. Look at Barack Obama attempt to rig the 2016 presidential election by ordering the FBI director James Comey to exonerate Hillary Clinton of her crime of using a private email server for official communications instead of official State Department server. The emails she sent included thousands which were in the categories secret, top secret, confidential and special access. Clinton's use of a private email server violated 18 US Code § 1924, prohibiting the unauthorized removal and retention of classified documents, violated State Department protocols and procedures, and violated federal regulations governing recordkeeping. See Obama order Comey to state a falsity, in view of the evidence against Clinton, that "no reasonable prosecutor would bring such a case": "Airports played an outsized role in the 2016 election. It was former President Bill Clinton's June 27 meeting with Attorney General Loretta Lynch on his parked plane at a Phoenix airport that reportedly convinced Comey that Lynch might appear compromised and that he should go around the proper charging officer for federal crimes to clear his wife. About a week later, Obama signaled the all clear after Comey's press conference by inviting Hillary Clinton to fly to campaign rallies on Air Force One. 'I'm here today because I believe in Hillary Clinton', Obama said during their July 5, 2016, rally in Charlotte, NC. 'I have had a front row seat to her judgment and her commitment.' Some presidential security experts and Secret Service sources contacted by RCI said the timing of the trip was suspicious. They point out that the president authorizing Clinton to fly aboard Air Force One on the same day his hand picked FBI director absolved her of crimes was almost certainly not a last minute decision because it would have required extensive preplanning. 'The security involved in setting up that tour took weeks of advance work, which means Obama knew she was going to be cleared and not charged', said a veteran Secret Service official who spoke on the condition of anonymity to discuss a sensitive matter. 'Obama wasn't going to risk endorsing her and joining her on the campaign trail without her first being cleared of federal crimes', he added. 'He knew about the end of the investigation well ahead of time.' Although the FBI did not interview Clinton about her emails until July 2, 2016, Comey had been circulating drafts of his exoneration statement at FBI headquarters for months and conveying to agents there was an 'extraordinary sense of urgency' to complete the investigation, according to the declassified documents released recently by the Justice Department. Critics note that the reasoning he offered for clearing Clinton in his July 5 statement was rife with contradictions. 'Although there is evidence of potential violations of the statutes regarding the handling of classified information', Comey said, 'our judgment is that no reasonable prosecutor would bring such a case.' Secret Service entry logs show Comey visited with Obama at least three times in 2016. 'The timing and presumption that Clinton would eventually be the Democratic Party nominee for President was part of the defendant's decisionmaking process', according to court papers the DOJ filed in November detailing why it alleges Comey predetermined Clinton's innocence. The new evidence suggests that Comey wasn't acting alone. It indicates that Obama was more involved in the Clinton probe than previously reported and that Comey, whose entire family supported Clinton, may have pulled his punches to placate the incumbent president and avoid getting on the wrong side of the woman he assumed would be Obama's successor. According to the communications, which US intelligence analysts determined were 'not fabrications', Obama was putting 'pressure' on Comey through Lynch to get rid of Clinton's email scandal as early as January 2016. Not long after, Comey began drafting his statement exonerating Clinton–months before FBI agents had ended their investigation. " (New Evidence: Obama's Fingerprints All Over Investigations Of Trump And Clinton by Paul Sperry). Barack Obama. Look at Barack Obama attempt to rig the 2016 presidential election by ordering the FBI to stop investigating corruption at the Clinton Foundation, in which donations were accepted in exchange for special access to the State Department and political favors from Hillary Clinton while she was secretary of state. In 2009, Clinton Foundation official Doug Band emailed Huma Abedin, Hillary Clinton's chief of staff, requesting a meeting with Clinton for Bahrain Crown Prince Salman bin Hamad Al Khalifa, who had donated $32 million to the Clinton Foundation. Two days after the request was sent, the meeting was arranged. In 2011, Raj Fernando, American political fundraiser and donor, donated $250,000 to the Clinton Foundation, and in exchange was appointed to the State Department's International Security Advisory Board. Between 2009 and 2013, the Russian nuclear energy agency Rosatom acquired Uranium One, a Canadian nuclear energy company which owned twenty percent of America's uranium. The acquisition had to be approved by the State Department, then headed by Hillary Clinton. The acquisition was approved after Uranium One's chairman made a $2.35 million donation to the Clinton Foundation. After the acquisition was approved, a Russian investment bank controlled by Vladimir Putin, a bank promoting Uranium One stock, paid Bill Clinton $500,000 for a speech in Moscow: "DNC communications from March 2016 revealed that Obama also 'sanctioned the use of administrative levers' to scuttle the FBI's investigation of the Clinton Foundation. Recently declassified FBI documents show that around the same time, FBI Deputy Director Andrew McCabe had ordered field agents to back off their investigation of Clinton Foundation donors and former Secretary of State Clinton as part of a possible pay for play scheme. On July 20, just five days before the start of the Democratic National Convention, FBI headquarters shut down the Clinton Foundation investigation. 'Based on the [political] sensitivities surrounding the Clinton Foundation', a just declassified internal FBI document reveals, agents were suddenly barred from issuing subpoenas, conducting interviews, or sharing bank information related to the case with other offices. HQ warned field offices to avoid creating 'any impression we are investigating the Clinton Foundation or the Clintons.' " (New Evidence: Obama's Fingerprints All Over Investigations Of Trump And Clinton by Paul Sperry). Barack Obama. Look at Barack Obama attempt to distract attention from Hillary Clinton's illegal use of her private email server to transmit classified documents, and to delegitimize Donald Trump after his victory in the 2016 presidential election. He ordered the CIA to reject its own findings that Trump was not a Russian agent and that the Russian government did not seek to influence the election for Trump. He ordered the CIA to fabricate evidence, based on a Clinton funded campaign dossier on Trump, that Trump colluded with Russia: "That day [July 5, 2016], the bureau received the first in a series of false reports alleging Trump conspired with Russia. The reports, authored by former British intelligence officer Christopher Steele, then working as an FBI informant, were funded by Clinton's campaign. Weeks later, President Obama was personally warned by the CIA that the Clinton campaign was planning to create a foreign espionage scandal falsely tying Trump to Russia to distract attention from her own espionage investigation involving her use of a private server to transmit classified emails. After Trump defeated Clinton, Obama [ordered] US intelligence agencies to revisit their prior assessments that found no evidence the Russian government tried to hack the election for Trump. Within just three weeks of Obama's December 9 order, the CIA came up with new evidence to conclude Putin personally launched an influence operation to help swing the race to Trump. The publicly released version of the assessment, which helped Obama and Clinton explain her shocking defeat, hid the fact that the CIA relied in part on the Clinton funded dossier to reach its new conclusion. Intelligence contradicting the 'key judgment' that Putin helped Trump win was omitted from the assessment, known as the ICA. Career analysts objected to using the dossier, but Obama's CIA chief Brennan overruled them. At least one senior intelligence analyst, now a whistleblower cooperating with the DOJ in its ongoing investigation of the entire scandal, said he was 'threatened' by superiors to change his preelection assessment to suggest Putin stole the election for Trump." (New Evidence: Obama's Fingerprints All Over Investigations Of Trump And Clinton by Paul Sperry). Barack Obama. In The Adventure Of The Final Problem, published in 1893, Arthur Conan Doyle introduces Professor James Moriarty. In the scene set at Reichenbach Falls in Switzerland, Holmes and Moriarty battle each other and fall to their doom. Doyle's vast audience wore black in the streets of London mourning Holmes's death and demanding that Holmes be brought back to life. In The Adventure Of The Empty House, Doyle obeyed their command. In the twenty first century, the American people have brought back Professor Moriarty in the person of Barack Obama.

WORLD POLITICS: COMMUNISTS VERSUS FASCISTS

Germany, 1919. Berlin is in the grip of communist revolution and the market town of Weimar is chosen as the meeting place to establish a new nation. This new nation, nicknamed the Weimar Republic, is a constitution of liberty and a voice of Enlightenment values. But this constitution was enacted in the wrong nation, and fit the German national character like the giant's clothes fit Tom Thumb. In the nation which worshipped at the altars of G. W. F. Hegel and Karl Marx, which worshiped a god called the Collective under such names as the State, the Nation and the Proletariat, and worshiped ar the altars of Friedrich Nietzsche's Will to Power, the Weimar Republic was doomed from the start. In 1933, with the accession to power of Adolf Hitler and his National Socialist Party, it was unceremoniously hurled into the dustbin of history. In 1933, Germany returned to its roots and descended into the savage jungle growing from its native soil. When it finally collapsed, the Enlightenment house of the Weimar Republic had been pockmarked with bullet holes blasted by two brother ideological movements, springing from the same Marxist source. These bullet holes were blasted by Marxists firing from rifles marked the Proletariat and Class War, and they were blasted by neoMarxists firing from rifles marked Aryans and Race War, and before the incessant firing, the house did not stand a chance, and on its ruins, after fourteen years of war, were unfurled the fearsome flags of Hitler's victorious swastikas. In the twenty first century, in the late modern age of the West, when late Roman style tides of cultural degeneration are rising ever higher, and religions are triumphing over the rule of reason, the ghosts of Weimar have returned and are taking over the free world. They have been elected to power in landslide votes, and in the twenty first century, the people of the West are all Germans now. In the twenty first century, as in Weimar Germany, two ideological brother movements face each other and are fighting for the control of civilization. Look at communists and fascists at war with each other today and see the story of the West being concluded in bloody violence. Communists. See communists plan violent protests and reduce cities to wastelands. See them march under the banners of multculturalism, Islam and illegal immigration. See them proclaim that a progressive society is a radical, subversive society whose mortal enemies are liberal institutions. See them foment criminal conduct in the service of race politics, black supremacy and a color revolution. See a Marxist cancer spread from cells of hatred and discontent and overrun streets, squares and neighborhoods: "Senator Josh Hawley (R-MO) has joined FBI Director Kash Patel in vowing to 'follow the money' to uncover exactly where the funding is coming from that is bankrolling the violent protests in Los Angeles and cities across the country. The riots in Los Angeles are anything but spontaneous. Shields, clothing, bricks, weapons, and attorney protection are being provided to these Marxists. It is well planned, which is the opposite of organic. This, in reality, has nothing to do with ICE and illegal immigration. It is the blossoming of a poisonous color revolution spurred on by the same radicals, subversive groups, and nongovernmental organizations that have stirred up trouble in the United States for decades. Patel told Just the News that the FBI is following the money to uncover what groups are backing the protests, which are now spreading like Marxist cancer across the nation. He was blunt in noting that 'It is aiding and abetting criminal conduct', according to Blazemedia. 'The FBI is investigating any and all monetary connections responsible for these riots', Patel stated." (Senator Hawley Launches Investigation Into Shady Activist Groups Funding Chaos, Bankrolling Riots by Terresa Monroe-Hamilton). Communists. See communists march under the banners of the Democratic Socialists of America, the nation's largest communist organization. See them run tanks of repression and call them Liberation Road. See wage war against freedom in the name of progressive politics. See them promote totalitarian politics in the name of Justice Democrats and the Working Families Party. See them join forces with the Muslim Brotherhood. See them form a Red-Green axis comprised of Marxist gender, race, class, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation politics, together with global Islam, in a united front dedicated to overthrowing liberal democracy. See them attack free institutions with the armies of class war. See them condemn capitalism as a regime of corporate greed. See them declare war on private freedom, private profit and the right of private existence. See them reject individual rights in favor of collective ownership of the mind and body, and the imprisonment of the human self: "Nida Allam, North Carolina's version of the newly sworn in socialist Muslim mayor Zohran Mamdani, poses a grave threat to the Research Triangle [hub for technology, research and education, located in Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill, North Carolina] by weaponizing contested hate crime claims from the 2015 Chapel Hill murders while forging ties to DSA aligned Marxists, Liberation Road style communist networks, and Muslim Brotherhood linked influences. Now launching her 2026 congressional primary challenge in NC-04–backed by the same progressive machine (Justice Democrats, Working Families Party, Sunrise, Bernie Sanders) that powered Mamdani–she aims to import the perilous Red-Green Axis of revolutionary socialism and Islamic identity politics into the heart of America's Deep South. North Carolina's 4th Congressional District faces a grave threat from Nida Allam, a far left Muslim activist with ties to the Democratic Socialists of America (DSA), America's largest Marxist organization. Like mayor elect Zohran Mamdani, Allam represents the Red/Green Axis, a convergence of Marxism and Islam. Allam is running against incumbent Representative Valerie Foushee after losing to her by nine points in 2022. Nida Allam maintains direct connections to the NC Triangle Democratic Socialists of America, the Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill chapter of

DSA. 'Let's turn North Carolina into a better shade of red!' declares the NC Triangle DSA website, alluding to the historical Red of communism. The NC Triangle DSA website features a short DSA promotional video on their home page, which hypes historical Marxist class warfare. One member explains that DSA is 'committed to transforming our society into one based on collective ownership'. Another states that DSA 'reject[s] an order fueled by corporate greed and private profit." (Beware The Next Zohran Mamdani: Nida Allam's Radical Run For Congress Imports NYC's Islamic-Marxist Takeover to North Carolina by Renee Nal). Fascism. See fascists condemn the notion of individual rights as a phantom abstraction. See them proclaim that nations are mystical entities whose walls, floors and roofs are constructed out of race, custom and tradition, and imprison the individual within their confines. See them proclaim that individual rights must be sacrificed on the altars of marriage, family, parliament and the national welfare state: "Abstract ideas and utopian schemas threaten to displace practical wisdom from the political process. Instead of the common law of England we have the abstract idea of human rights, slapped on us by European courts whose judges care nothing for our unique social fabric. Instead of our inherited freedoms we have laws forbidding 'hate speech' and discrimination that can be used to control what we say and what we do in ever more intrusive ways. The primary institutions of civil society—marriage and the family—have no clear endorsement from our new political class. Most importantly, our parliament has, without consulting the people, handed over sovereignty to Europe, thereby losing control of our borders and our collective assets, the welfare state included." (Roger Scruton in The Guardian, 2013). Fascists. See fascists proclaim that liberal democracy is a regime of unnatural and antisocial uprootedness. See them proclaim that liberal democracy is evil because culture, religion, family life, social inheritance and the endless flow of generations have primacy over the individual. See them proclaim that the only legitimate morality is social morality, the morality of interdependence, because the individual does not in fact exist. See them proclaim that the individual is defined in terms of his situation, context and group identity, where he is and where he comes from, and the chief sickness of our times is the belief that the individual is a sovereign, independent, self subsisting entity possessing rights, freedom and dignity all his own, which cannot be revoked by any church, family, tradition, community or state: "The key challenge of our age is that of uprootedness. We are all uprooted from our religious inheritance, from our cultures, from the normalities of family life and intergenerational reliance. Through individualism, we're uprooted from the kind of interdependence that makes us morally accountable to each other and hence moral at all, and we're uprooted from our own ancestral wisdom tradition, our history, and thus from anything our antecedents might have bestowed upon us as a roadmap for times to come. To quote Archduke Otto von Habsburg, 'Someone who doesn't know where he's from, doesn't know where he's going, because he doesn't know where he stands.' Deracination—uprootedness—is the fundamental condition, or rather ailment, of modern man. The antidote to deracination is initiation. And initiation into our own civilizational inheritance and birthright is precisely what Scruton sought repeatedly to provide. Indeed, that is what he continues to offer to his readership, and what he will give to those who turn to him in generations to come." (Roger Scruton: Subversion Incarnate by Sebastian Morello). The World Today. Marshlands are breeding grounds for malaria, hosting mosquitoes whose bites transmit the disease. Rife with extremism, conspiracy theories, collectivist religions and a spiritual malarial madness, the world today is following in the footsteps of ancient Rome and the Weimar Republic. Look at the mosquito bites. Class wars. Race wars. Gender wars. Capitalist conspiracies. Male conspiracies. Identity politics. God, family, tradition, custom and hierarchy. The fever swamps of the late modern age are killing the nations and institutions standing for human progress.

CALIFORNIA SLAVE STATE

It dominates America's West Coast. Bordering Oregon to the north, Nevada and Arizona to the east, and Mexico to the south, it is the most populous state in the nation and the third largest state by area. The scene of the 1848–1855 Gold Rush, California is America's Golden State, and its forty million residents, spread out over 500,000 square kilometers, have sent forth a blinding light of economic production, creating a four trillion dollar GDP which is the largest in the nation. In the twenty first century, the Golden State has been sent into a permanent eclipse by a movement rising over the decades. The movement known as Marxism, among the preeminent cancers of our time, has reached a crescendo in the Golden State, and cast a pall of censorship and race and gender discrimination across the legal profession, transforming the organs of law into weapons of revolution. Sworn to be the guardian and protector of the Constitution, the California legal establishment has become its sworn enemy, assuming the task of chief enforcer of a multigorgon monster called gender, race, class, culture, ethnicity and sexual orientation ideologies. In the twenty first century, the Golden State has lost its luster and has become shrouded in the darkness of Marxist thought control and identity politics. California Today. Look at California today and see a legal establishment run amok. See the California Supreme Court descend into a far left fever swamp. See the Court restrict the speech and conduct of lawyers round the clock in order to ensure unwavering adherence to the Marxist party line. See the California State Bar control the speech of lawyers and require Marxist content in the name of dignity, courtesy and integrity, on pain of suffering financial penalties and disbarment. See it transform officers of the court into officers of a new Red Army. See it demand, without justice, fairness or due process of law, that lawyers don the blackface of a new Marxist Ku Klux Klan. See it demand that lawyers sing in the key of Marxism and chant hymns of world destruction. See it demand that lawyers "read, declare and mean" professions of unswerving allegiance to Marxism. See it demand that lawyers promote a religion called transgenderism, proclaiming, in defiance of science, that sex has nothing to do with DNA, is not fixed and immutable, and can be changed by human will. See it demand that lawyers play along with psychotics who pretend to be members of the opposite sex and refer to them by incorrect pronouns and agree to disregard their original birth names. See it disbar lawyers who support Donald Trump and wear MAGA clothing. See it disbar lawyers who tell the truth and refer to the homeless as vagrants and illegal immigrants as invaders and enemy aliens. See it disbar lawyers who post antiMarxist views on social media platforms. See it disbar lawyers who post online comments opposing radical feminism. See it support the investigation, censorship, demonetizing, deplatforming and prosecution of conservatives, libertarians and supporters of Donald Trump. See it disbar lawyers who oppose race and gender discrimination against white males, paraded in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. See it support police raids against antiMarxists, opponents of radical feminism, and those who deny the truth of transgenderism. See it support government shut downs of antiMarxist social media platforms, and multimillion dollar fines levied against them, on the grounds of combating hate speech. See it support the suppression of antiMarxist views on the grounds of combating offensive speech. See it disbar lawyers who defend Donald Trump on the grounds of combating moral turpitude, depriving them of their careers and livelihoods. See it regiment lawyers to parrot the messages, ideas and subject matter of a global Marxist movement of antiEnlightenment: "California's far left Supreme Court has ordered restrictions on the speech and expressive conduct of California's lawyers 'at all times', including during their unrelated business activities, political endeavors and personal lives. Just before Christmas, the even more radical California State Bar imperiously advised the state's 200,000 lawyers 'Read it, declare it, mean it.' That ominous warning introduced the California Supreme Court's Orwellian Rule 9.7 which requires every lawyer to attest that: 'As an officer of the court, I will strive to conduct myself at all times with dignity, courtesy and integrity.' The license of any lawyer who fails or refuses to acquiesce will be invalidated, and any lawyer who violates the oath is subject to 'appropriate fees and penalties' to be set by the Bar. For a nanosecond, that's an appealing concept. But, under the First Amendment, no instrumentality of government may condition an individual's livelihood on complying with its view of 'dignity' or 'courtesy', in their political or personal endeavors. Invalidating the licenses of noncompliant lawyers also violates procedural due process under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. Tying the oath to meaningless pap about a lawyer being an 'officer of the court' exposes the premeditated overreach. As a threshold problem, even in traditional usage, 'strive', 'dignity' and 'courtesy' are so vague that no lawyer could know what is required, violating substantive due process. Presumably, cross dressing is now considered dignified and proper; but, what about blackface? Or using invective, mentioning a transgender person's 'deadname', employing grammatically and biologically correct pronouns, wearing a MAGA hat or T-shirt, referring to the homeless as vagrants, rather than 'unhoused', or illegal aliens as invaders, rather than noncitizens? How about singing off key? These statements and symbols are protected by the First Amendment, and yet, aside from singing off key, each has been used by the far left to suppress social media posts and articles, suspend and expel students, and fire employees on grounds that their traditional beliefs and expressive conduct are discourteous and undignified. In Europe, which has no First Amendment, criminal prosecutions for speech and symbols progressives find odious are rapidly increasing. Britain made more than 12,000 arrests last year, more than 30 each day, for offensive online posts. At last year's Munich Security Conference, Vice President JD Vance called out elites in Europe for threatening to shut down social media to combat 'hateful content' and German police for raiding 'citizens suspected of posting antifeminist comments.' The Europeans retorted that they are preserving courtesy and dignity, and then most uncourteously fined X $140 million for failing to comply. Despite the First Amendment, the Biden administration weaponized its opposition to free discourse with a whole of government enterprise that censored, demonetized and deplatformed conservatives, prosecuted prolife activists, and investigated parents who opposed DEI and kowtowing to transgender militants. It has taken considerable litigation to protect students, faculty, and other employees targeted by state and local governments for their socalled offensive speech and symbols, including prayer, refusal to call biological men 'she', and wearing MAGA hats and T shirts. Merely regulating tone, comportment, and politeness violates the Constitution. But the threat implied by Rule 9.7 is more perniciously intended to chill free speech, and there is every reason to expect that the California Supreme Court and Bar will use Rule 9.7 to destroy the livelihoods of conservative and America First lawyers who run afoul of the left's everexpanding canon of dos and don'ts. Invalidating a law license can cascade into loss of other licenses, financing, and business and social opportunities. Just last year, the California Bar proclaimed that 'attorneys have an ethical duty to provide competent and diligent representation to clients, regardless of how unpopular or controversial their causes may be', yet it concurrently suspended, and demanded the disbarment of Claremont Institute constitutional attorney John Eastman for giving legal advice to President Trump in the run up to January 6, 2021. Bar prosecutors characterized his willingness to advise Trump on his alternatives as 'moral turpitude.' The California Bar zealously promotes DEI, which unconstitutionally allocates opportunities by race and gender orientation. DEI's advocates duplicitously label their opponents as racists, effectively a claim of undignified and discourteous conduct, two grounds for disciplinary action. The United States Supreme Court has clearly explained that the First Amendment prohibits government from restricting speech, symbols or expressive conduct because of the message, ideas, subject matter or content. There are no exceptions for hate speech, courtesy, dignity or court officers. The California Supreme Court and State Bar know this. They are counting on their power over the state's lawyers to coerce compliance. Supporters of free speech must not let that happen." (California Sets Limits For Free Speech by Kevin Spivak). California Today. Look at California today and see John Eastman subjected to Marxist intimidation, harassment and legal action, and disbarred on the grounds that he engaged in unethical conduct by exercising his First Amendment right to challenge an election, protest and seek redress of grievances: "A three judge panel of the California State Bar Court agreed Tuesday with a lower court judge that John Eastman, a former law school dean who advised President Donald Trump, should lose his law license over the 2020 election. Eastman helped craft legal challenges to the election results, and also advised President Trump on a legal strategy that included challenging the election results when they came before Congress. These efforts failed—as election challenges often do, on both sides of the aisle. But Democrats and left wing lawfare groups decided to punish Trump's attorneys with a campaign of bullying and bar complaints. According to Politico, Eastman, who denies any unethical conduct, will now appeal to the California Supreme Court, and may take his case into the federal court system for relief due to the bias of California's courts." (California State Bar Court Upholds Eastman Disbarment For 2020 Election Advice by Joel Pollak). California Today. In 1850, California was admitted to America as the thirty first state and admitted under the Compromise of 1850, which approved its request to enter the union as a free state. It would remain free until the twenty first century. After one hundred and seventy five years of freedom, California has violated its shining, antislavery California Statehood Act and transformed itself into a local legal arm of international Marxist terror.

AMERICA'S MIGRANT INVASION

It is a continuous, intense, thunder of human liberation, rolling implacably across the nation. It commenced on January 20, 2025, the day Donald Trump assumed office in his second term as president of the United States. It is the thunder of mass deportations of enemy aliens and it has made history. In Trump's first year in office, three million enemy aliens left America, the highest number in its history, including including over 2.2 million self deportations and over 675,000 forced deportations. These aliens included murderers, terrorists, rapists, gang members and drug traffickers. Immigrations and Customs Enforcement agents have conducted raids on sanctuary cities shielding enemy aliens, liberating schools, hospitals and places of worship of the scourge of illegal immigration. Under the Trump administration, ICE agents have taken human bacteria off the streets in quantities they have never been taken off before, and have fulfilled the mandate the people gave to Trump on November 5, 2025 to disinfect the nation and make it safer and cleaner. Trump's mass deportation operation has produced tragic victims, and these cases have been exploited by the far left defenders of enemy aliens in their campaign to halt deportations and bring back the invaders. One victim was Renee Good. On January 7, 2026, Good, a 37 year old American citizen, was shot dead in Minneapolis by ICE agent Jonathan Ross. Good was in her car when Ross approached it and walked around it. Two other agents approached the car and one ordered Good to get out, and grabbed the door and tried to force it open and force her out. Good reversed the car to evade the agent, then moved forward and to the right into the direction of traffic. Ross was standing at the front-left of the car and fired three shots at Good, killing her as the car was passing and turning away from him. Another victim was Alex Pretti. On January 24, 2026, Pretti, a 37 year old American citizen, while protesting deportation operations in Minneapolis, came to the aid of a protester who was not an illegal immigrant and had been pushed to the ground by a United States Border Patrol agent. He put his arm around the protester and sought to shield her from the agent. He was pepper sprayed by the agent, pummeled in the face with the spray can, pushed to the ground and pummeled by multiple agents, disarmed of his legal firearm which was holstered, and then, unarmed, was shot ten times at point blank range. These murders committed by immigration agents formed a pretext for riots across the nation staged by the far left. America Today. Look at America today and see rioters come out in support of the lowest forms of subhumanity illegally in the nation. See them come out in support of enemy aliens convicted of murder, burglary, drug trafficking and sex crimes against children. They came out in support of living, breathing, walking guns, drugs, vice, crime and terror which have overrun America: "Amid organized rioting in cities like Minneapolis, Minnesota, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents are continuing to arrest illegal aliens convicted of murder, sex crimes against children, drug trafficking, and burglary. 'While millions of Americans hunkered down during the historic winter storm, the heroic men and women of ICE did not let the cold or snow stop them from arresting the worst of the worst criminal illegal aliens terrorizing our communities', a Department of Homeland Security (DHS) spokesperson said in a statement: 'Some of the sickos arrested over the weekend include murderers, registered sex offenders and drug dealers.' Among those illegal aliens arrested by ICE agents this weekend is Matilde Flores-Najera of Mexico, who was previously convicted of murder in Dallas County, Texas. ICE agents also arrested several illegal alien sex offenders and those convicted of child sex crimes:

Ismael Alvarez-Guerra of Mexico, convicted of oral copulation with a minor under 10 years old in Los Angeles, California

- Johanns Cuadros-Almanza of Peru, convicted of aggravated criminal sexual contact in Essex County, New Jersey
- David Canales-Palma of Honduras, convicted of second degree sexual exploitation of a minor in New Hanover County, North Carolina
- Frantz Joseph of Haiti, convicted of assault with intent to commit sexual abuse in Allamakee County, Iowa
- Carlos Cuenca-Vera of Ecuador, convicted of criminal sexual act in White Plains, New York

ICE arrested Rafael Agustin Soto-Baez of the Dominican Republic, who has been convicted on eight counts of possession to distribute Class A drugs and distributing or dispensing Class A fentanyl in Massachusetts. In addition, ICE agents arrested illegal aliens convicted of drug crimes, assault, and burglary, including:

Joel Prudente-Mayares of Mexico, convicted of assault with a deadly weapon in Riverside County, California

- Jose Garcia-Pineda of Honduras, convicted of assault of a family member in Houston, Texas
- Edith Lizbeth Osorio-Alvarez of Mexico, convicted of importation of methamphetamine and aiding and abetting in the Southern District of California
- Hugo Alexander Campos Bonilla of Guatemala, convicted of burglary and stalking in Los Angeles, California
- Herber Leonel Enrique-Ramos of El Salvador, convicted of second degree robbery in Los Angeles, California, and battery in Contra Costa County, California
- Andreh Ismaiel Bolandi of Iran, convicted of manufacturing a controlled substance in Los Angeles, California
- Farshad Ghiassi of Iran, convicted of unlawful transport of firearms in Indianapolis, Indiana
- Francisco Montano-De Paz of El Salvador, convicted of burglary of an unoccupied dwelling in Wimauma, Florida. " (ICE Arrests Illegal Alien Killers, Sex Offenders, Burglars Amid Organized Left Wing Riots by John Binder).

America Today. Look at America today and see the armies of Islam declare war on America's fight against enemy aliens. See them declare war on the American government and military. See them proclaim as their life's mission the overthrow of liberal democracy. See them seek to transform the nation into a Muslim society under the dictatorship of imams. See them seek to transform the nation into a Muslim Brotherhood. See them sacrifice reason and science on the altar of religious faith. See them march under the banners of Islamic prophets as they resolve to storm the ramparts of civilization. See them justify the mass murder of nonbelievers in the name of Allah. See them promote extremism in defense of the Community of the Faithful. See them pledge eternal resistance to liberal institutions as their supreme duty. See them confront state authority with the aim of smashing it. See them establish the organizational structures for Islamic revolution. See them reject assimilation to Western liberal values and organize neighborhoods, mosques and youth centers as bases in a campaign to destroy freedom in America: "The religious director of the Muslim American Society's New York youth center vowed open defiance of US authorities, declaring it his 'life mission' as a Muslim to fight against the American government, military and federal immigration enforcement 'to the last breath.' The remarks were delivered during a Friday sermon last week by Brooklyn imam Mohammad Badawy, a Muslim American Society youth leader in New York, and were captured in a recording livestreamed on the organization's YouTube channel before circulating online over the weekend. Badawy framed his defiance as an act of religious faith, stating that his stance followed the example of Islamic prophets who, he argued, stood unarmed against powerful states. He emphasized that physical harm could not defeat spiritual conviction. 'There are no armies that can break this resolve', he said, arguing that true power ultimately belongs to Allah rather than governments or militaries. The sermon's explicit naming of US institutions—paired with a vow to 'fight' them—comes amid increased scrutiny of Islamist extremism in the United States. Badawy serves as a youth leader within the Muslim American Society—an organization that bestselling investigative author and Breitbart News senior contributor Peter Schweizer documents in his explosive new book, The Invisible Coup: How American Elites And Foreign Powers Use Immigration As A Weapon, as having been identified by US federal prosecutors as the 'overt arm' of the Muslim Brotherhood in the United States. Schweizer details how Muslim Brotherhood linked organizations reject assimilation and instead advance an Islamist doctrine rooted in hijrah—migration framed not as resettlement, but as a strategic and religious obligation used to spread influence, establish political footholds, and confront state authority from within. Under that framework, resistance to US institutions—including immigration enforcement agencies such as ICE—is cast not as protest, but as duty, a pattern Schweizer warns has increasingly surfaced inside American mosques, youth centers, and religious infrastructure." (NY Islamic Youth Center Director Vows: 'Fight' US Gov, Military, ICE 'To The Last Breath. Allah Will Replace You' by Joshua Klein).

America Today. Time: the fourth century AD. Place: Europe. Event: the decline and fall of the Roman Empire. The forces of religion and barbarism, Christianity and the Germanic hordes, have settled within the gates of civilization and killed the mind and body of the Classical world. Two thousand years after this catastrophe ended human freedom and ushered in the Dark Ages, the ghosts of the Roman past have returned to attack America. They have changed their appearance but not their mission. In the twenty first century, an axis of Marxists, Muslims and illegal migrants has written the final chapter of America and the West.
